GENEVA AP - A joint Western proposal for a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons is to be offered to the Soviet Union during the next two weeks, reliable sources reported today.

Approve Amendment Three MFA President Urges

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Fred V. Heinkel, president of the Missouri Farmers Association, said today "it is very important that we vote for and adopt Amendment No. 3", in the Aug. 17 special election.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Association, Heinkel came out in favor of the amendment, which would provide the Legislature with authority to reapportion the Missouri House of Representatives.

"Voting against Amendment No. 3 and defeating it will not defeat reapportionment," he said. "It could mean that it will be done by some group other than the Missouri House of Representatives which you elected."

He added that if the amendment is defeated and the Federal Court does not redistrict the House, "then we could be faced with all candidates for the Missouri House of Representatives having to run at large. This would be chaos. Can you imagoine having to select 163 nominees from several hundred candidates?"

The MFA president said failure of Congress to pass a new farm law could be disastrous; would "bankrupt thousands of farmers" and such a decline "would be serious not only to farmers but to lending agencies from whom they borrow and also the people from whom they buy supplies."

He said the bill, as reported by the House Agriculture Committee, would provide much needed new dairy legislation; would extend the present feed grains program for four years; extend the wheat program for four years and provide for a cropland adjustment program.

Extra Social Security Pay Coming

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's an extra check in your future if you are one of the 20 million persons now receiving Social Security benefits.

That check, due to be mailed in late September, will be a retroactive payment reflecting the seven per cent increase provided under the Social Security-health care bill signed Friday by President Johnson.

The bill is retroactive to January. To figure what your check may be, let's assume you received $100 monthly January through August for an $800 total. The separate September check will be seven per cent of $800, or $56.

The first regular checks reflecting the increase will be mailed in early October covering September.

Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball mentioned the upcoming check Sunday in outlining what some people should do to receive new benefits.

Some needn't do anything.

If you are a Social Security or railroad retirement beneficiary 65 or older, you automatically will be certified for the new basic hospital insurance which goes into effect July 1, 1966.

And if you are a beneficiary interested in the voluntary supplementary plan covering physicians' fees and other benefits, you will receive automatically by mail an enrollment card in September or October. The voluntary program also is effective next July 1.

Some people, however, should check now at their nearest Social Security office, Ball said. These groups include:

Persons 65 or over who are insured under Social Security but never have applied for benefits. Apply now — even if employed full time — for hospital insurance. This will assure you of getting any cash benefits you may be entitled to beginning in 1966 under more liberal retirement test provisions.

Persons 72 or over not now receiving benefits because they or their husbands hadn't worked long enough to qualify under previous provisions. You now may qualify for $35 monthly benefits with as little as three-fourths of coverage under Social Security.

Widows 60 or 61 years old. You can file application now to start getting cash benefits at 60, at a reduced amount, instead of 62. This provision becomes effective in September.

Students 18 to 22 whose Social Security benefits have stopped. Apply for benefits retroactive to January if you've been dropped from the Social Security rolls. If you are nearing 18 and plan to stay in or return to school, fill out an information form which will start benefits when you reach 18.

Severely disabled workers. You now may collect disability insurance if the disability has lasted or may last 12 months. Previous provisions stipulated that the disability had to last a long and indefinite time.

Widows past 60 who have remarried or women at least 62 who were divorced after 20 years or more of marriage. You should inquire about possible new benefits.

Persons over 65 who have not worked under Social Security. You may sign up Sept. 1 for the basic hospital and insurance and, if you wish, the voluntary medical plan.

I-55 to Open Tuesday from Benton to Scott City

Interstate Route 55 will open for traffic from Benton to Scott City tomorrow.

Motorists will have a mile of two-way traffic at Scott City while interchange work is completed.

Traffic desiring to use Routes M and K from the Interstate route will continue to use the temporary crossover.

This project was constructed in two stages. The grading and bridges were done by R. B. Potashnick of Cape Girardeau during 1963 and 64 at a cost of $2,667,198.

Independent Construction Company and Swenson Construction company of Overland Park, Kan., have the contract for the paving at a cost of $2,330,967.

Mark Weston, a highway department official, said that motorists will be amply warned of two-way traffic by signs and flashing lights.

The new section will connect two previously opened segments of I-55. The Fruitland to Scott City stretch was the first to be opened in December of 1962. The highway from Sikeston to Benton was opened in January of this year.

Weston said work is scheduled on the New Madrid-to-Portageville stretch during the next construction season while most of the route in Pemiscot county is either in the right-of-way acquisition of the planning stages.

Approve Amendment Three MFA President Urges

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Fred V. Heinkel, president of the Missouri Farmers Association, said today "it is very important that we vote for and adopt Amendment No. 3", in the Aug. 17 special election.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Association, Heinkel came out in favor of the amendment, which would provide the Legislature with authority to reapportion the Missouri House of Representatives.

"Voting against Amendment No. 3 and defeating it will not defeat reapportionment," he said. "It could mean that it will be done by some group other than the Missouri House of Representatives which you elected."

He added that if the amendment is defeated and the Federal Court does not redistrict the House, "then we could be faced with all candidates for the Missouri House of Representatives having to run at large. This would be chaos. Can you imagoine having to select 163 nominees from several hundred candidates?"

The MFA president said failure of Congress to pass a new farm law could be disastrous; would "bankrupt thousands of farmers" and such a decline "would be serious not only to farmers but to lending agencies from whom they borrow and also the people from whom they buy supplies."

He said the bill, as reported by the House Agriculture Committee, would provide much needed new dairy legislation; would extend the present feed grains program for four years; extend the wheat program for four years and provide for a cropland adjustment program.

Extra Social Security Pay Coming

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's an extra check in your future if you are one of the 20 million persons now receiving Social Security benefits.

That check, due to be mailed in late September, will be a retroactive payment reflecting the seven per cent increase provided under the Social Security-health care bill signed Friday by President Johnson.

The bill is retroactive to January. To figure what your check may be, let's assume you received $100 monthly January through August for an $800 total. The separate September check will be seven per cent of $800, or $56.

The first regular checks reflecting the increase will be mailed in early October covering September.

Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball mentioned the upcoming check Sunday in outlining what some people should do to receive new benefits.

Some needn't do anything.

If you are a Social Security or railroad retirement beneficiary 65 or older, you automatically will be certified for the new basic hospital insurance which goes into effect July 1, 1966.

And if you are a beneficiary interested in the voluntary supplementary plan covering physicians' fees and other benefits, you will receive automatically by mail an enrollment card in September or October. The voluntary program also is effective next July 1.

Some people, however, should check now at their nearest Social Security office, Ball said. These groups include:

Persons 65 or over who are insured under Social Security but never have applied for benefits. Apply now — even if employed full time — for hospital insurance. This will assure you of getting any cash benefits you may be entitled to beginning in 1966 under more liberal retirement test provisions.

Persons 72 or over not now receiving benefits because they or their husbands hadn't worked long enough to qualify under previous provisions. You now may qualify for $35 monthly benefits with as little as three-fourths of coverage under Social Security.

Widows 60 or 61 years old. You can file application now to start getting cash benefits at 60, at a reduced amount, instead of 62. This provision becomes effective in September.

Students 18 to 22 whose Social Security benefits have stopped. Apply for benefits retroactive to January if you've been dropped from the Social Security rolls. If you are nearing 18 and plan to stay in or return to school, fill out an information form which will start benefits when you reach 18.

Severely disabled workers. You now may collect disability insurance if the disability has lasted or may last 12 months. Previous provisions stipulated that the disability had to last a long and indefinite time.

Widows past 60 who have remarried or women at least 62 who were divorced after 20 years or more of marriage. You should inquire about possible new benefits.

Persons over 65 who have not worked under Social Security. You may sign up Sept. 1 for the basic hospital and insurance and, if you wish, the voluntary medical plan.

Couple in 70's Climb Mountains

REDCLIFF, Colo. (AP) — H. Russell Briggs, 72, and his 77-year-old wife started climbing Colorado's highest peaks on their honeymoon 45 years ago and they're still at it.

The Madison, Wis., couple set out from Georgetown Sunday morning to climb the 14,005-foot Mount of the Holy Cross, a snow-crowned peak looming over this community about 150 miles west of Denver.

The Briggses thought they had climbed every peak higher than 14,000 feet in Colorado--so they decided to start over. Then the U.S. Geological Survey reported this spring that the Mount of the Holy Cross actually was 14 feet higher than its previously listed 13,991 feet.

I-55 to Open Tuesday from Benton to Scott City

Interstate Route 55 will open for traffic from Benton to Scott City tomorrow.

Motorists will have a mile of two-way traffic at Scott City while interchange work is completed.

Traffic desiring to use Routes M and K from the Interstate route will continue to use the temporary crossover.

This project was constructed in two stages. The grading and bridges were done by R. B. Potashnick of Cape Girardeau during 1963 and 64 at a cost of $2,667,198.

Independent Construction Company and Swenson Construction company of Overland Park, Kan., have the contract for the paving at a cost of $2,330,967.

Mark Weston, a highway department official, said that motorists will be amply warned of two-way traffic by signs and flashing lights.

The new section will connect two previously opened segments of I-55. The Fruitland to Scott City stretch was the first to be opened in December of 1962. The highway from Sikeston to Benton was opened in January of this year.

Weston said work is scheduled on the New Madrid-to-Portageville stretch during the next construction season while most of the route in Pemiscot county is either in the right-of-way acquisition of the planning stages.

MAJESTY, INDEED!

August--can this be the month of pride and invincibility?

The Romans named one month, July, for JULIUS CAESAR, and then there came along one GAIUS OCTAVIUS, knows as AUGUSTUS, who decided another month should be named in his own honor.

AUGUSTUS acquired his nickname, title or what-have-you from the Roman Senate, and it implied majesty, power and strength and suggested that one must look upon the emperor with reverence.

It is our inheritance to have this month named August, then, with a capital letter. And the language is blessed with the adjective "august," which still suggests something proud and regal and indomitable.

Poppycock, if you'll pardon the expression. GAIUS OCTAVIUS, or AUGUSTUS, or whatever he called himself, must have been off on a trip to the baths when he decided a month should be named for him.

Would that he could see the dripping brow of a pedestrian on a hot sidewalk in Sikeston on an August day, or the damp back of a Southeast Missouri field hand, or the panting child who rushes in from outdoor play 10 or 12 times an afternoon, slamming the back door and raiding the refrigerator water bottle in an effort to slake an insatiable August thirst.

Most of the populace is in full retreat, heading for the nearest air-cooled store, or a swimming pool, or a patch of shade by a lake.

Night and darkness, accompanied by a slight drop in temperature, are greated as long-lost friends. A small, charcoal-tinted cloud, drifting past the sun, turns all eyes skyward in the desperate hope that rain and cool breezes are on the way.

Proud, reverent, strong, majestic? Perhaps you were, O great AUGUSTUS. Nowadays we're the most un-august bunch of people you could imagine when your month gets a full grip on us.

Comes August, and most of us are taking vacations where it's cooler, or shopping for air-conditioning machines.

THINKING NECESSARY

There is an old saying that: "advertising involves thinking."

Sorry to say a large percentage of advertisers don't do much thinking when writing and placing advertising. When you boil it down advertising is salesmanship and no merchant would try to sell merchandise without thinking.

Bright ideas, selling ideas do not come easy and to obtain them requires some thought.

The ideas that sell merchandise don't always come from study or pencil chewing. Ideas generally occur in a fleeting moment -- and that is when they should be captured and put on paper. No good advertising man is without pencil and paper at any time. At lunch, beside his bed, at the easy chair, in church, driving home, there should be paper and pencil within reach.

Good newspaper advertising will sell merchandise, but it cannot be done on hunches, wishful thinking and complacency.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says: "A national police force is a tool of tyranny. I abhor the implications of the term, and I refuse to let the FBI be forced into practices which smack of police state actions, regardless of the circumstances. . . .Some individuals, in their efforts to secure the fundamental guarantees of the Constitution for all citizens, have criticized this Bureau for not exceeding its authority and for not assuming responsibilities belonging to the local and State police. The FBI fully appreciates the grave responsibility inherent in the investigation of alleged violations of Federal civil rights statutes. As I have stated many times, we are meeting these obligations without apology. Our role, however, is that of an investigator--not an accuser, prosecutor, jury, or judge."

SUNSET SAVED THE BOND ISSUE

Until precinct II of Ward II came into the City Administration office Tuesday evening, both bond issues were defeated. As a matter of fact, if it had not have been the majorities given in the two precincts in Ward II, the bond issue would have had to be voted on again. It brings up again Legislation changes needed for the voting on bond issues.

We would like to see Representative Tony Heckemeyer and Senator Albert Spradling offer legislation in the next regular session of the Legislature, that would exclude everybody but property owners from voting on bond issues.

We also believe that a simple majority of those eligible voters should be all required to pass same. We feel that if a 30 or 40 year tax mortgage is to be placed against a piece of property, only those persons who own the property, either in whole or in part, should be allowed to place the tax or obligation on the real property.

General obligation bonds are issued by cities and are backed up by what amounts to a mortgage on property in the cities. We believe that a greater number of taxpayers must share the load of taxation because the average shareowner who pays his share of all other forms of taxation is additionally burdened to carry on an ever-increasing heavy load to real estate taxes.

CRIME IN D. C.

Nearly five months ago in a special message to Congress, President Johnson declared war on crime in America. "We must arrest and reverse the trend toward lawlessness," he declared. "No right is more elemental to our society than the right of personal security, and no right needs more urgent protection."

Subsequently it seemed that the sense of urgency had gone out of the program. But the way recently was cleared for a concerted attack of lawlessness in the area where it is most noticeable and objectionable -- the District of Columbia. The President on July 16 signed the District's 1966 appropriations bill and four days later the D. C. Police Department started saturating the capital's peak crime areas wih the equivalent of 235 additional policemen. These are patrolmen and detectives who have agreed to work a sixth day at overtime rates of pay.

The pilot effort is being watched closely by the President. "I want the best police force in the United States here in this capital of our nation," he stated on July 16, "and I want to make it clear that we are going to have it, or some fur is going to fly."

Serious crime in the District of Columbia has increased 106 per cent in the last eight years. In the 12 months ended June 30, 32,545 serious crimes were reported in the District, an increase of 12.4 per cent over the prior 12 months. The criminal docket in D. C. courts is so crowded that many charges are dropped or reduced in the interest of a quick disposition of a case.

President Johnson believes the war on crime in the nation's capital can serve as a model for other cities. It could clear the way for greater federal leadership in law enforcement and administration of justice elsewhere. Nothing less than a dramatic success story is likely to change the prevailing view in Congress -- that crime prevention is a state and local matter except where federal law has been violated.

HOW NOT TO CREATE JOBS

In proposing double-time for overtime, the Administration assumes that this would force employers to hire new employees at straight-time rates.

The motive -- creating new jobs--is good, but many feel that, the method is wrong. It just wouldn't work out that way.

The pool of unemployed people, heavily weighed with the unskilled and inexperienced, is not in any realistic sense a replacement for the skilled workers who are being worked overtime because they are in short supply.

If it were economically sound to hire new employees rather than run up overtime, employers would do this right along in order to avoid the present 50 per cent premium. Yet the facts are clear--overtime persists and expands, rather than diminishes.

New jobs cannot be created by eliminating overtime where the need fluctuates from week to week. A plant or office must be staffed for normal operations. An employer simply cannot man his plant for temproary and intermittent production peaks.

Peaks of operation mean overtime. Since a growing demand means satisfied customers, new orders, new plants, and new jobs, overtime eventually can be translated into greater employment. But if penalties become too severe, this road to success may be effectively barricaded.

If it be true that coming events cast their shadows in advance, then the current bankruptcy of the California employee welfare program indicates what could well be the future trend in federal welfare programs.

As of April 1, and until such time as the California legislature may act to raise additional revenue, the state has been forced to welsh on its promise to pay hospital benefits to employees for which purpose deductions have been made from their paychecks for years.

NEW YORK AP —Painters of soup cans and sculptors of smashed automobiles had best look to their innovations -- the fossil fish has arrived.

This newest thing in art is the brainchild of a New York stockbroker, Joseph S. Clark Jr., 36, son of the Pennsylvania senator.

The fossil fish was a long time reaching the market. Clark, an amateur geologist, figures they may be as old as 62 million years. His interest in geology let him to discovery of the aesthetic value of fossils.

The reddish fossils, embedded in slabs of creamy limestone, are hung on the wall like pictures. The delicate skeleton of the fish appears to have been sculpted.

"The fossils are opart," said Clark, who noted that op art, or optical art, leans heavily on naturalistic objects.

The fish command a price of $100 to $1,700, depending on size. Most are only a few inches long, but a seven-foot alligator garfish now being prepared is expected to bring up to $30,000.

The fossils come from the Green River basin in southwestern Wyoming, where Clark's partner, Carl J. Ulrich of Kemmerer, Wyo., digs up the limestone slabs and readies them for shipment. The partnership is named, appropriately, the Pescadora Co.

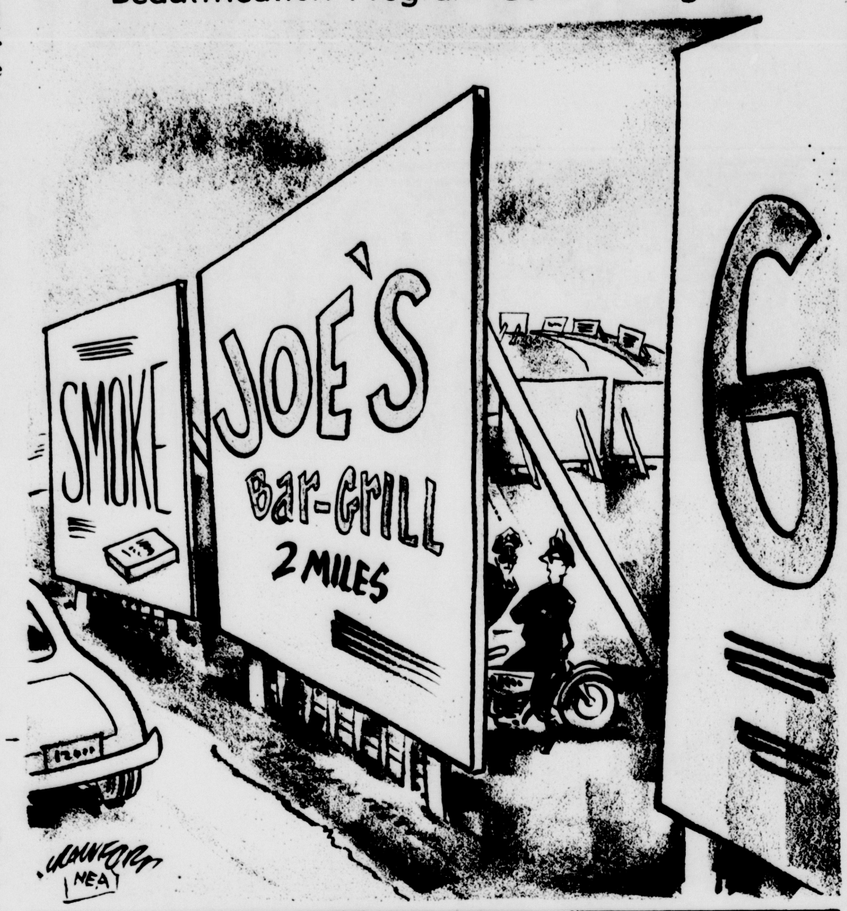

Clark sells the fossils from his apartment. His wife, Felicia, handles the business end of the partnership.

Clark said he was struck by the resemblance of the fossils to the cave paintings at Lascaux, France, and Altamira, Spain.

Clark has exhibited the fossils at his children's school, but has yet to be approached by any art museum.

"We're in Trouble if the President's Beautification Program Goes Through!"

When the principle of unemployment insurance was first put into affect in the Golden State, employees were assessed 1% of the first $3,000 in wages toward unemployment insurance, with the employers paying the balance.

However, some 15 years ago when the then Governor Earl Warren was unsuccessfully seeking to get passed a state medical care bill, a bit of what might be termed a political numbers racket was instituted.

It was decided the entire burden of the unemployment insurance premiums should be paid by the employers with the employee contributions going into a fund to pay a certain amount toward hospital bills, and also to provide pensions to disabled workers.

While the maximum employee contribution to this fund has been increased over the years from $30 to $56, the fund has continued to pay only $12 per day for hospital expenses despite the constantly increasing costs of hospital costs, with a limit of 20 days of hospitalization.

However, in addition, the fund also pays a maximum of $80 per week tax free to disabled workers, provided the worker qualifies for this maximum by earning at least $625 per month. The minimum payment made for disability is $25 per week.

But on April 1, the fund derived from these enforced employee contributions had sunk to such a low balance that it was necessary to discontinue the payments for hospital care. Presumably if a private insurance company failed to pay, there would be state prosecutions, but the only solution advanced so far by the state administration has been a request for more taxes. The Legislature has been turning a jaundiced eye to these requests on the suspicion that there has been substantial abuses in making payments out of the fund.

When this welfare program was inaugurated, and then when it was enlarged, California was undergoing a fantastically high era of economic development.

Since that time, however, the economy has been slowed down by the declining demand for new aircraft, plus other cutbacks in the defense program with the result that California now has more than 400,000 unemployed.

In addition, the situation was probably made more critical by the fact that California was subjected to a "Wirtzkrieg". The basic economy of the state depends on the growing, harvesting and processing of food. The refusal of Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz to permit continuation of the use of sufficient Mexican Labor to carry on the industry has resulted in curtailments which have apparently had a severe depressant action on the state's economy.

Current surveys being conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business show that California which had for some time been the nation's leading state in the production of new jobs and employment opportunities has slipped badly in this respect and is no longer a national leader.

Obviously, any politically inspired welfare plan can look good in a boom period, but what happens when an economic reversal sets in? This is a question not only of concern to the thousands of Californians now unable to get the hospital benefits they have already paid for, but should also be of concern to national planners in the area of social welfare.

"THE MONSTROUS DECREE"

American businessmen who are worried about the regulations Washington imposes on them can breath a sigh of relative relief when they compare our rules with a decree about to go into effect in Argentina. That is, they can if they don't happen to have a plant there!

The decree, effective June 28, will arbitrarily reduce drug prices about 40 per cent below their current levels, at which they have been frozen for two years.

Manufacturers will be allowed to count as production cost, under the government formula, only the amount spent for labor and raw materials. The government will fix pharmaceutical price ceilings based on that fallacious formula, and thereafter only minimum allowances will be made for other facets of doing business -- such as research, marketing, and administrative expense.

Referring to the new regulation as " a monstrous decree," the Economic Survey, a business paper published in Buenos Aires, said that the very survival of the pharmaceutical industry was at issue. Leaders of the drug industry say many firms may find it impossible to operate under the decree.

Argentina's drug industry has annual payroll of about five billion pesos (more than $28 million). It's estimated that some 20,000 families would be affected if there are serious cutbacks in drug production there.

If one is tempted to say, "What's this to me" -- it might be well to remember that this might be just the opening wedge for similar decrees in other industries. And that would affect many U.S. corporations, not just drug companies, doing business in Argentina.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- I received letters from several members of the International Platform Association, now meeting here asking whether it was safe for them to come to Washington in view of recent rapes, robberies, and the FBI report that the nation's Capital ranks fourth in crime.

Many Shriners had asked the same question prior to their recent convention.

The answer is that while crime is serious in Washington, 8,000,000 tourists came here last year, and aside from the murphing of the mayor of Selma, Ala., and a few purse-snatching, none have suffered from serious crime.

Meanwhile Lyndon Johnson, both as a Senator and as President, has become the nation's No. 1 crime fighter, even before he appointed two crime commissions, for Washington and the nation.

A lot of crime springs from dropouts and inadequate education in Washington. Thanks to Niggardly Budgets votes by the congressional committees, schools have been terribly overcrowded. In the fall of 1963, some schools in Negro districts had as many as 90 students per classroom, about one-third of them unable to get seats.

My wife, a volunteer teacher at that time, found that teachers were so harassed and overworked that they promoted backward students automatically, just to get rid of them. Some 14-year-olds so promoted couldn't even read "Cat" or "Dog."

No one can estimate how many dropouts are pushed out into a potential life of crime by one bad session of over-crowded schools.

LBJ has been more successful in promoting better schools than any previous president. He has also been a never-failing supporter of Big Brothers and other organizations combating juvenile delinquency, dating back to his Senate days.

However, here are some additional ideas which he and his newly appointed crime commissions might consider:

Electronic Devices in Parks: Sen. Jennings Randolph, the resourceful Senator from West Virginia, points out that we have perfected amazing electronic gadgets for detecting what's on the moon; Why couldn't similar devices in parks detect crime or sound alarms in case of rapes and robberies?

With radar doing the work of traffic cops in tracking down speedsters, it should also be possible to use radar and other electronic devices to detect and prevent crime.

Warnings posted in city parks that they are equipped with radar would in themselves be a crime deterrent.

Sen. Randolph, while not opposed to reaching the moon, feels that some of the amazing discoveries perfected for outer space could also be used here at home.

TV Crime Stories: Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., and the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Committee have already reported the alarming effect of TV violence in encouraging crime.

To get public benefit from these findings, the President might call to Washington the heads of the three networks, the top advertising executives and the big soap and tobacco companies, and ask their cooperation in toning down crime on television.

While nobody wants censorship, we do want the right to walk through the streets of our major cities unmolested. And according to all the juvenile delinquency studies, violence on TV has a lot to do with inspiring crime.

President Johnson has told friends the battle against crime has just begun, and has asked newspapers and other opinion-molders to help get public cooperation. The TV networks could help right at the source.

MAYOR ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT

Big, affable Elliott Roosevelt, who suddenly came out from under a palm tree and got himself elected Mayor of Miami Beach, has taken his new job by storm. His first 100 days have been a little like the first of his late father, FDR in the White House.

Mayor Roosevelt has served notice on the City Council that he intends to shake up and wake up this glittering resort city. He quotes statistics to show that it is rapidly becoming a haven for rich, retired old folks who, he insists, would rather belong to a balanced community. The school population is declining; the business tempo is slowing down; and an alarming number of homes are up for sale.

Roosevelt wants to rezone the city for cheaper housing that will attract young married couples. He is bursting with ideas to reform the city government, modernize the police and beautify the area.

He has already made approaches to bring the 1968 Democratic Convention to Miami Beach and to persuade the owners of Disneyland to build an even more fabulous model on an island in Miami Harbor.

Though the job pays only $3,000 a year, the new Mayor has neglected his own business to put in nearly full time for the city. Just a busy planning and promoting for Miami Beach is his vivacious wife Pat, who usually sits in the front row at City Council meetings.

Roosevelt has told friends that his only ambition is to do the best possible job as Mayor. And the way he has started out, he seems to have the old FDR touch.

Note -- One of Roosevelt's problems is that the beaches north of the city are attracting new growth. The northward trend was started by Sam Friedland, the Food Fair Supermarket Tycoon, who built his own miniature Miami Beach in Hollywood, Fla. This is the fabulous diplomat complex which now includes a luxury hotel, motel, inn, country club, apartment towers and two golf courses. Shrewdly, Roosevelt is trying to persuade Friedland to serve on an advisory committee that will be asked to help him plan Miami Beach's future.

THE WORD CURTAIN

Every government which engages in propaganda on a large scale soon masters the art of spinning a bright and shining curtain of words which cuts off all view of the hard reality lying behind them.

Americans, whose training and inclination tends more in the direction of practical matters, are perhaps not fully aware of the enormous importance of words and the multitudinous ways in which words can be used to twist or hide truth as well as to reveal it.

As a test, think of a sum of money you are about to receive from government, regardless of its purpose or justification. If someone calls that sum of money a "dole", a "handout" or "public charity", the chances are that you will be infuriated. If it is called a "subsidy" or simply "aid" you are likely to feel vaguely uneasy or somehow unworthy.

But if it is called a "grant", a "matching fund", a dividend from a "mutual assistance program" or a "payment", even though you may have done nothing for which you might reasonably expect to be compensated, your conscience is likely to sleep on undisturbed.

This is not to say that everyone who receives money from government should automatically feel guilty about it. It is to say that any guilt or lack of guilt we may feel should result from the actual reason we got the money, not from the word used to describe it.

If we face realities squarely we cannot be fooled. But if we let ourselves be wrapped in the word curtain, then almost anything can be put over on us. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Prime Minister in British Guiana Typifies New Leaders From Labor, Anti - Red Achievements of AIFLD

Georgetown, British Guiana: -- On the "other side of town" in a little labor hall there was an emotional moment worth coverage by the world press and TV cameras linked to early-bird intercontinental broadcast.

There was but one foreign correspondent there and he got a look into the future. This came when the Prime Minister of this land began making the welcoming speech to the labor movement's 12th national "congress". With the eloquence and literacy so characteristic of his people, Prime Minister Forbes Burnham spoke to the labor delegates as one of them. And well he could.

Standing up front he was the oratorical embodiment of what few busy Americans are aware of. Here, as well as the world over, where burgeoning nations spawn new governments, the labor leader of yesterday is the prime minister of today.

This is significant, for there are still 31 British colonies soon to be independent. Each will have an independent government, a voice in the UN and each will be led by trade unionists.

Prime Minister Burnham is president (now on leave) of the British Guiana Labor Union, "mother of all unions" here. Thus, when he arose and greeted the delegates to the national congress as "comrades," it was his right. Thus he could say to them, "we have struck together, we have sung (Solidarity Forever) together, we have worked together . . and if there is a change in government I will return to you.."

And, in return, the chairman greeted the prime minister warmly and as a comrade. But the chairman reminded the Prime Minister frankly that the labor movement made him and could break him. And it could "destroy any politicians," the chairman gently advised.

It all was done with the underplay of British wit absorbed by the Guianese, governed so long by the English. But there was unity in the face of the enemy, the Mao-ist type opposition party which was ousted in an election only six months ago after holding the government for years.

The premier's party needs this unity to fight off the Communists' Operation Intimidation and the mysterious sabotage and arson. But most important here and to the people of North and South America, the premier's party (People's National Congress) needs skilled infighters and parliamentarians to outmaneuver the Communists in the unions and the parliament.

The Communists are aided by Havana, Moscow and Peiping. Only a few weeks ago the Communists' leader and disciplinarian, Mrs. Janet R. Jagan, was in London on her way to see Mao-Tse tung in Peiping. She had to return here because of serious problems inside her People's Progressive Party.

To offset this Communist global operation inside Georgetown, the anti - Communist labor movement receives help from the American Institute for Free Labor Development (AIFLD), which operates out of Washington. It is unique. AIFLD is a joint venture of American labor and American industry. Both sides have gotten together to neutralize the Communists' invisible invasion of the Caribbean and Central and South America.

Working with AIFLD's president, George Meany, are the top executives of such far-sighted corporations as Pan American Airways, General Motors, Grace and Co., General Electric -- to mention just a few of the 60 major U. S. firms which joined with the AFL-CIO to help develop democratic labor leaders and millions of rank and filers.

Thus the graduates of the Communist training schools in Cuba, Russia and mainland China are neutralized by the scholarly and practical AIFLD labor training center in Washington. One of AIFLD's graduates is the gentle, soft-voiced David R. Persaud, now president of the British Guiana Trades Union Council.

But the developing of a Dave Persaud into a skilled labor leader is only one of the joint labor - management ventures here and across the West Indies and Latin world. ALFLD, through guaranteed loans from the AFL-CIO, has a permanent headquarters here which is building a housing project for 580 families. This is the first of its kind in a land which the Communist regime let rot. But there is also the vast interior, much of it jungles no man has trod. And much of it with no roads at all.

For the Guianese deep in the interior -- the people the Communists sought to drive into misery so the "imperialists" would be blamed -- the AIFLD has a Cinvaram machine. It weighs 50 pounds. With shipment it costs $180. With the correct mixture of soil and water and the application of 200 pounds of pressure per square inch, Cinvaram makes strong bricks for swift housing construction.

With a little muscle and much heart and $180 worth of machinery -- supplied by AIFLD -- families can have little homes of their own to provide a feeling of dignity, and sufficiently sturdy to keep out the weather and Communist propaganda.

Thus the battle goes in far-off lands. Thus it can be won when men of good will stride shoulder to shoulder.

MAJESTY, INDEED!

August--can this be the month of pride and invincibility?

The Romans named one month, July, for JULIUS CAESAR, and then there came along one GAIUS OCTAVIUS, knows as AUGUSTUS, who decided another month should be named in his own honor.

AUGUSTUS acquired his nickname, title or what-have-you from the Roman Senate, and it implied majesty, power and strength and suggested that one must look upon the emperor with reverence.

It is our inheritance to have this month named August, then, with a capital letter. And the language is blessed with the adjective "august," which still suggests something proud and regal and indomitable.

Poppycock, if you'll pardon the expression. GAIUS OCTAVIUS, or AUGUSTUS, or whatever he called himself, must have been off on a trip to the baths when he decided a month should be named for him.

Would that he could see the dripping brow of a pedestrian on a hot sidewalk in Sikeston on an August day, or the damp back of a Southeast Missouri field hand, or the panting child who rushes in from outdoor play 10 or 12 times an afternoon, slamming the back door and raiding the refrigerator water bottle in an effort to slake an insatiable August thirst.

Most of the populace is in full retreat, heading for the nearest air-cooled store, or a swimming pool, or a patch of shade by a lake.

Night and darkness, accompanied by a slight drop in temperature, are greated as long-lost friends. A small, charcoal-tinted cloud, drifting past the sun, turns all eyes skyward in the desperate hope that rain and cool breezes are on the way.

Proud, reverent, strong, majestic? Perhaps you were, O great AUGUSTUS. Nowadays we're the most un-august bunch of people you could imagine when your month gets a full grip on us.

Comes August, and most of us are taking vacations where it's cooler, or shopping for air-conditioning machines.

THINKING NECESSARY

There is an old saying that: "advertising involves thinking."

Sorry to say a large percentage of advertisers don't do much thinking when writing and placing advertising. When you boil it down advertising is salesmanship and no merchant would try to sell merchandise without thinking.

Bright ideas, selling ideas do not come easy and to obtain them requires some thought.

The ideas that sell merchandise don't always come from study or pencil chewing. Ideas generally occur in a fleeting moment -- and that is when they should be captured and put on paper. No good advertising man is without pencil and paper at any time. At lunch, beside his bed, at the easy chair, in church, driving home, there should be paper and pencil within reach.

Good newspaper advertising will sell merchandise, but it cannot be done on hunches, wishful thinking and complacency.

I abhor the implications of the term, and I refuse to let the FBI be forced into practices which smack of police state actions, regardless of the circumstances. . . .Some individuals, in their efforts to secure the fundamental guarantees of the Constitution for all citizens, have criticized this Bureau for not exceeding its authority and for not assuming responsibilities belonging to the local and State police. The FBI fully appreciates the grave responsibility inherent in the investigation of alleged violations of Federal civil rights statutes. As I have stated many times, we are meeting these obligations without apology. Our role, however, is that of an investigator--not an accuser, prosecutor, jury, or judge."

SUNSET SAVED THE BOND ISSUE

Until precinct II of Ward II came into the City Administration office Tuesday evening, both bond issues were defeated. As a matter of fact, if it had not have been the majorities given in the two precincts in Ward II, the bond issue would have had to be voted on again. It brings up again Legislation changes needed for the voting on bond issues.

We would like to see Representative Tony Heckemeyer and Senator Albert Spradling offer legislation in the next regular session of the Legislature, that would exclude everybody but property owners from voting on bond issues.

We also believe that a simple majority of those eligible voters should be all required to pass same. We feel that if a 30 or 40 year tax mortgage is to be placed against a piece of property, only those persons who own the property, either in whole or in part, should be allowed to place the tax or obligation on the real property.

General obligation bonds are issued by cities and are backed up by what amounts to a mortgage on property in the cities. We believe that a greater number of taxpayers must share the load of taxation because the average shareowner who pays his share of all other forms of taxation is additionally burdened to carry on an ever-increasing heavy load to real estate taxes.

CRIME IN D. C.

Nearly five months ago in a special message to Congress, President Johnson declared war on crime in America. "We must arrest and reverse the trend toward lawlessness," he declared. "No right is more elemental to our society than the right of personal security, and no right needs more urgent protection."

Subsequently it seemed that the sense of urgency had gone out of the program. But the way recently was cleared for a concerted attack of lawlessness in the area where it is most noticeable and objectionable -- the District of Columbia. The President on July 16 signed the District's 1966 appropriations bill and four days later the D. C. Police Department started saturating the capital's peak crime areas wih the equivalent of 235 additional policemen. These are patrolmen and detectives who have agreed to work a sixth day at overtime rates of pay.

The pilot effort is being watched closely by the President. "I want the best police force in the United States here in this capital of our nation," he stated on July 16, "and I want to make it clear that we are going to have it, or some fur is going to fly."

Serious crime in the District of Columbia has increased 106 per cent in the last eight years. In the 12 months ended June 30, 32,545 serious crimes were reported in the District, an increase of 12.4 per cent over the prior 12 months. The criminal docket in D. C. courts is so crowded that many charges are dropped or reduced in the interest of a quick disposition of a case.

President Johnson believes the war on crime in the nation's capital can serve as a model for other cities. It could clear the way for greater federal leadership in law enforcement and administration of justice elsewhere. Nothing less than a dramatic success story is likely to change the prevailing view in Congress -- that crime prevention is a state and local matter except where federal law has been violated.

HOW NOT TO CREATE JOBS

In proposing double-time for overtime, the Administration assumes that this would force employers to hire new employees at straight-time rates.

The motive -- creating new jobs--is good, but many feel that, the method is wrong. It just wouldn't work out that way.

The pool of unemployed people, heavily weighed with the unskilled and inexperienced, is not in any realistic sense a replacement for the skilled workers who are being worked overtime because they are in short supply.

If it were economically sound to hire new employees rather than run up overtime, employers would do this right along in order to avoid the present 50 per cent premium. Yet the facts are clear--overtime persists and expands, rather than diminishes.

New jobs cannot be created by eliminating overtime where the need fluctuates from week to week. A plant or office must be staffed for normal operations. An employer simply cannot man his plant for temproary and intermittent production peaks.

Peaks of operation mean overtime. Since a growing demand means satisfied customers, new orders, new plants, and new jobs, overtime eventually can be translated into greater employment. But if penalties become too severe, this road to success may be effectively barricaded.

If it be true that coming events cast their shadows in advance, then the current bankruptcy of the California employee welfare program indicates what could well be the future trend in federal welfare programs.

As of April 1, and until such time as the California legislature may act to raise additional revenue, the state has been forced to welsh on its promise to pay hospital benefits to employees for which purpose deductions have been made from their paychecks for years.

"We're in Trouble if the President's Beautification Program Goes Through!"

When the principle of unemployment insurance was first put into affect in the Golden State, employees were assessed 1% of the first $3,000 in wages toward unemployment insurance, with the employers paying the balance.

However, some 15 years ago when the then Governor Earl Warren was unsuccessfully seeking to get passed a state medical care bill, a bit of what might be termed a political numbers racket was instituted.

It was decided the entire burden of the unemployment insurance premiums should be paid by the employers with the employee contributions going into a fund to pay a certain amount toward hospital bills, and also to provide pensions to disabled workers.

While the maximum employee contribution to this fund has been increased over the years from $30 to $56, the fund has continued to pay only $12 per day for hospital expenses despite the constantly increasing costs of hospital costs, with a limit of 20 days of hospitalization.

However, in addition, the fund also pays a maximum of $80 per week tax free to disabled workers, provided the worker qualifies for this maximum by earning at least $625 per month. The minimum payment made for disability is $25 per week.

But on April 1, the fund derived from these enforced employee contributions had sunk to such a low balance that it was necessary to discontinue the payments for hospital care. Presumably if a private insurance company failed to pay, there would be state prosecutions, but the only solution advanced so far by the state administration has been a request for more taxes. The Legislature has been turning a jaundiced eye to these requests on the suspicion that there has been substantial abuses in making payments out of the fund.

When this welfare program was inaugurated, and then when it was enlarged, California was undergoing a fantastically high era of economic development.

Since that time, however, the economy has been slowed down by the declining demand for new aircraft, plus other cutbacks in the defense program with the result that California now has more than 400,000 unemployed.

In addition, the situation was probably made more critical by the fact that California was subjected to a "Wirtzkrieg". The basic economy of the state depends on the growing, harvesting and processing of food. The refusal of Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz to permit continuation of the use of sufficient Mexican Labor to carry on the industry has resulted in curtailments which have apparently had a severe depressant action on the state's economy.

Current surveys being conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business show that California which had for some time been the nation's leading state in the production of new jobs and employment opportunities has slipped badly in this respect and is no longer a national leader.

Obviously, any politically inspired welfare plan can look good in a boom period, but what happens when an economic reversal sets in? This is a question not only of concern to the thousands of Californians now unable to get the hospital benefits they have already paid for, but should also be of concern to national planners in the area of social welfare.

"THE MONSTROUS DECREE"

American businessmen who are worried about the regulations Washington imposes on them can breath a sigh of relative relief when they compare our rules with a decree about to go into effect in Argentina. That is, they can if they don't happen to have a plant there!

The decree, effective June 28, will arbitrarily reduce drug prices about 40 per cent below their current levels, at which they have been frozen for two years.

Manufacturers will be allowed to count as production cost, under the government formula, only the amount spent for labor and raw materials. The government will fix pharmaceutical price ceilings based on that fallacious formula, and thereafter only minimum allowances will be made for other facets of doing business -- such as research, marketing, and administrative expense.

Referring to the new regulation as " a monstrous decree," the Economic Survey, a business paper published in Buenos Aires, said that the very survival of the pharmaceutical industry was at issue. Leaders of the drug industry say many firms may find it impossible to operate under the decree.

With shipment it costs $180. With the correct mixture of soil and water and the application of 200 pounds of pressure per square inch, Cinvaram makes strong bricks for swift housing construction.

With a little muscle and much heart and $180 worth of machinery -- supplied by AIFLD -- families can have little homes of their own to provide a feeling of dignity, and sufficiently sturdy to keep out the weather and Communist propaganda.

Thus the battle goes in far-off lands. Thus it can be won when men of good will stride shoulder to shoulder.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- I received letters from several members of the International Platform Association, now meeting here asking whether it was safe for them to come to Washington in view of recent rapes, robberies, and the FBI report that the nation's Capital ranks fourth in crime.

Many Shriners had asked the same question prior to their recent convention.

The answer is that while crime is serious in Washington, 8,000,000 tourists came here last year, and aside from the murphing of the mayor of Selma, Ala., and a few purse-snatching, none have suffered from serious crime.

Meanwhile Lyndon Johnson, both as a Senator and as President, has become the nation's No. 1 crime fighter, even before he appointed two crime commissions, for Washington and the nation.

A lot of crime springs from dropouts and inadequate education in Washington. Thanks to Niggardly Budgets votes by the congressional committees, schools have been terribly overcrowded. In the fall of 1963, some schools in Negro districts had as many as 90 students per classroom, about one-third of them unable to get seats.

My wife, a volunteer teacher at that time, found that teachers were so harassed and overworked that they promoted backward students automatically, just to get rid of them. Some 14-year-olds so promoted couldn't even read "Cat" or "Dog."

No one can estimate how many dropouts are pushed out into a potential life of crime by one bad session of over-crowded schools.

LBJ has been more successful in promoting better schools than any previous president. He has also been a never-failing supporter of Big Brothers and other organizations combating juvenile delinquency, dating back to his Senate days.

However, here are some additional ideas which he and his newly appointed crime commissions might consider:

Electronic Devices in Parks: Sen. Jennings Randolph, the resourceful Senator from West Virginia, points out that we have perfected amazing electronic gadgets for detecting what's on the moon; Why couldn't similar devices in parks detect crime or sound alarms in case of rapes and robberies?

With radar doing the work of traffic cops in tracking down speedsters, it should also be possible to use radar and other electronic devices to detect and prevent crime.

Warnings posted in city parks that they are equipped with radar would in themselves be a crime deterrent.

Sen. Randolph, while not opposed to reaching the moon, feels that some of the amazing discoveries perfected for outer space could also be used here at home.

TV Crime Stories: Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., and the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Committee have already reported the alarming effect of TV violence in encouraging crime.

To get public benefit from these findings, the President might call to Washington the heads of the three networks, the top advertising executives and the big soap and tobacco companies, and ask their cooperation in toning down crime on television.

While nobody wants censorship, we do want the right to walk through the streets of our major cities unmolested. And according to all the juvenile delinquency studies, violence on TV has a lot to do with inspiring crime.

President Johnson has told friends the battle against crime has just begun, and has asked newspapers and other opinion-molders to help get public cooperation. The TV networks could help right at the source.

MAYOR ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT

Big, affable Elliott Roosevelt, who suddenly came out from under a palm tree and got himself elected Mayor of Miami Beach, has taken his new job by storm. His first 100 days have been a little like the first of his late father, FDR in the White House.

Mayor Roosevelt has served notice on the City Council that he intends to shake up and wake up this glittering resort city. He quotes statistics to show that it is rapidly becoming a haven for rich, retired old folks who, he insists, would rather belong to a balanced community. The school population is declining; the business tempo is slowing down; and an alarming number of homes are up for sale.

Roosevelt wants to rezone the city for cheaper housing that will attract young married couples. He is bursting with ideas to reform the city government, modernize the police and beautify the area.

He has already made approaches to bring the 1968 Democratic Convention to Miami Beach and to persuade the owners of Disneyland to build an even more fabulous model on an island in Miami Harbor.

Though the job pays only $3,-000 a year, the new Mayor has neglected his own business to put in nearly full time for the city. Just a busy planning and promoting for Miami Beach is his vivacious wife Pat, who usually sits in the front row at City Council meetings.

Roosevelt has told friends that his only ambition is to do the best possible job as Mayor. And the way he has started out, he seems to have the old FDR touch.

Note -- One of Roosevelt's problems is that the beaches north of the city are attracting new growth. The northward trend was started by Sam Friedland, the Food Fair Supermarket Tycoon, who built his own miniature Miami Beach in Hollywood, Fla. This is the fabulous diplomat complex which now includes a luxury hotel, motel, inn, country club, apartment towers and two golf courses. Shrewdly, Roosevelt is trying to persuade Friedland to serve on an advisory committee that will be asked to help him plan Miami Beach's future.

NEW YORK AP —Painters of soup cans and sculptors of smashed automobiles had best look to their innovations -- the fossil fish has arrived.

This newest thing in art is the brainchild of a New York stockbroker, Joseph S. Clark Jr., 36, son of the Pennsylvania senator.

The fossil fish was a long time reaching the market. Clark, an amateur geologist, figures they may be as old as 62 million years. His interest in geology let him to discovery of the aesthetic value of fossils.

The reddish fossils, embedded in slabs of creamy limestone, are hung on the wall like pictures. The delicate skeleton of the fish appears to have been sculpted.

"The fossils are opart," said Clark, who noted that op art, or optical art, leans heavily on naturalistic objects.

The fish command a price of $100 to $1,700, depending on size. Most are only a few inches long, but a seven-foot alligator garfish now being prepared is expected to bring up to $30,-000.

The fossils come from the Green River basin in southwestern Wyoming, where Clark's partner, Carl J. Ulrich of Kemmerer, Wyo., digs up the limestone slabs and readies them for shipment. The partnership is named, appropriately, the Pescadora Co.

Clark sells the fossils from his apartment. His wife, Felicia, handles the business end of the partnership.

Clark said he was struck by the resemblance of the fossils to the cave paintings at Lascaux, France, and Altamira, Spain.

Clark has exhibited the fossils at his children's school, but has yet to be approached by any art museum.

Hal Boyle is on vacation.

Miss LaVern Ruth Greer Is Bride Of Kenneth Keller

CHAFFEE -- Miss LaVern Ruth Greer and Kenneth George Keller were married July 24, at St. Ambrose Catholic Church. The Rev. Philip Bucher performed the double ring ceremony in a floral setting of white chrysanthemums, pompoms and greenery. Miss Kathy Komis provided the special music.

Miss Greer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byrl T. Greer and Mr. Keller, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keller.

Escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was attired in a controlled silhouette of imported Swiss organza, having capelet sleeves and a full chapel train outlined with dimensional Venice lace. Her bouffant imported silk illusion veil was affixed to an organza coronet of petals and flowers etched in seed pearls. Her only jewelry was her mother's engagement gift, a diamond - centered cross necklace. She carried a cascade of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Sisters of the bride and bridegroom served as her attendants, Mrs. Gary Glenzy, matron of honor; Mrs. Jerry Tindall, bridesmaid, and Miss Elizabeth Keller, junior bridesmaid. They wore floor - length gowns of mint green shantung, the high rise waistlines being outlined in Venice lace motifs and the backs featuring Watteau trains. Their white organza bow hats had nose-tip veils and their cascades of carnations were tinted to match their gowns.

The flower girl, Melinda Keller, sister of the bridegroom, wore a floor-length dress of white dotted swiss featuring a fitted bodice, full skirt and a mint green sash.

Men who served Mr. Keller were: Norman Finney, best man; Nelson Greer, St. Louis, and Frank Greer, brothers of the bride, groomsmen; and Gary Bouge and Jerry Tindall, ushers.

Molded Ham Salad Pleases At Luncheon

When you have a pretty special molded ham loaf ready for luncheon, it's easy to approach the occasion with a feeling of confidence for its success.

Tomato sauce gives a good base for this ground ham loaf, advises widely-known meat authority Reba Staggs. Capers and horseradish add interesting flavor touches to sharpen its taste.

There are enough vegetables in this loaf to give it crunchiness, so it might be served with spiced pears or peaches and small muffins or toast triangles such as raisin or rye. An easy dessert would be brownies a la mode served with iced tea or coffee.

Party Best Ham Salad

2 cups ground cooked ham
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon capers
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup drained pickle relish
½ cup thinly sliced celery
1 hard cooked egg, sliced

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Combine tomato sauce and 1 cup water in saucepan and heat to boiling. Add softened gelatin and lemon juice and chill until slightly thickened. Stir in ham, capers, horseradish, mayonnaise, onion, green pepper, pickle relish and celery. Arrange sliced egg lengthwise in a lightly greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pan. Pour in ham mixture. Chill 4 to 5 hours or until firm. Unmold. 6 to 8 servings.

Auto Jack Yanks Hedges

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Polly

DEAR POLLY—Anyone who plans to replace a hedge with a fence might like this tip. After pulling out two or three bushes in a hedge, my husband became so exasperated that he almost gave up the idea of pulling out the rest of the hedge. Suddenly he thought of hooking one end of a heavy rope on a car jack and tightly tying the other end to the bottom of the bush. It was so simple to work the jack and watch the roots come up that we finished the whole hedge in an hour's time.—MRS. S. L.

GIRLS—One of our tried and true gentlemen advisers says this seems so logical that he would try it if he were going to uproot shrubbery.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My husband does most of his own car repairs and when he has to get under the car he makes a hat out of a paper sack and fits it round his head. He keeps folding it until it fits like a cap and his hair stays clean.

I save all my partly soiled paper napkins and put them in a paper bag. They are ready for use for wiping up spilled grease, cleaning out ash trays and so on. I certainly save on paper towels.—NINA

DEAR POLLY—I sure like your ideas and would like to add one of my own. An empty salt carton that has a pouring spout is an ideal flour dispenser to keep near the stove to be ready when just a bit of flour is needed. Many steps are saved and the flour is available with a flip of the spout.—MRS. J. K.

GIRLS—It would be easy to fill the empty salt carton with flour if a small funnel is used.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My stainless steel cake carrier does double duty when my husband cannot always come home to dinner during our busy farm season. I fix his plate exactly as if he were going to eat at the table, put it in the cake carrier and transport it to the field where he is working. The metal covering keeps the food clean and warm.—FARMER'S WIFE

GIRLS—This would be an idea that could be adapted to many situations. Would help keep food warm when carrying to a sick room, to a neighbor and so on.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When you are writing with a ballpoint pen and it starts to skip simply rub the spot on the paper with an eraser and there will be no more trouble. I still learn from the helpful hints even though I am past 70. So best wishes and thanks.—HILDA.

Miss LaVern Ruth Greer Is Bride Of Kenneth Keller

CHAFFEE -- Miss LaVern Ruth Greer and Kenneth George Keller were married July 24, at St. Ambrose Catholic Church. The Rev. Philip Bucher performed the double ring ceremony in a floral setting of white chrysanthemums, pompoms and greenery. Miss Kathy Komis provided the special music.

Miss Greer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byrl T. Greer and Mr. Keller, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keller.

Escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was attired in a controlled silhouette of imported Swiss organza, having capelet sleeves and a full chapel train outlined with dimensional Venice lace. Her bouffant imported silk illusion veil was affixed to an organza coronet of petals and flowers etched in seed pearls. Her only jewelry was her mother's engagement gift, a diamond - centered cross necklace. She carried a cascade of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Sisters of the bride and bridegroom served as her attendants, Mrs. Gary Glenzy, matron of honor; Mrs. Jerry Tindall, bridesmaid, and Miss Elizabeth Keller, junior bridesmaid. They wore floor - length gowns of mint green shantung, the high rise waistlines being outlined in Venice lace motifs and the backs featuring Watteau trains. Their white organza bow hats had nose-tip veils and their cascades of carnations were tinted to match their gowns.

The flower girl, Melinda Keller, sister of the bridegroom, wore a floor-length dress of white dotted swiss featuring a fitted bodice, full skirt and a mint green sash.

Men who served Mr. Keller were: Norman Finney, best man; Nelson Greer, St. Louis, and Frank Greer, brothers of the bride, groomsmen; and Gary Bouge and Jerry Tindall, ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Greer were host and hostess at a reception following the ceremony in the school. Miss Jackie Hunter and Mrs. Glenda Morgan served the cake; Miss Nancy Crump presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Helen Jo Hailey registered the guests.

The bride, a graduate of Chaffee High School with the Class of 1963 and the Cape Girardeau School of Beauty Culture, is co-owner of the Modernette Beauty Salon at Chaffee. Mr. Keller, also a 1963 graduate of the local high school, completed a two-year course at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, in automotive technology and is employed by the Ponder Chevrolet and Buick Company in Charleston.

Upon returning from a honeymoon the couple will be at home at 802 School Street in Charleston.

Clara Elaine Graviett And Ronald Mays Are Wed

ORAN -- Miss Clara Elaine Graviett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thomas Graviett of Oran, and Ronald James Mays exchanged wedding vows Sunday afternoon, July 25, at First Baptist Church here.

The Rev. Donald Cochran of Leachville, Ark., performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, greenery and candlelight.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Swiss silk organza over taffeta, frosted with lace motifs flecked with sequins. The bateau neckline, long slim sleeves and a cummerbund completed the bodice. A demi-bell skirt swept to a lavishly ruffled chapel train, and her headdress was a double crown of tiny pearls and crystal teardrops, which secured a veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a white Bible arrangements of white carnations.

Miss Brenda Sue Mays, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor in a white waffle weave pique sheath dress. Her flowers were white carnations tinted mint green, and her accessories were of this same tone. Miss Janice Laub was vocalist, accompanied by Miss Lynn Ransdell, both Oran residents.

Leland Graviett of St. Charles, the bride's brother, was best man, and ushers were Lorin Leroy Vaughn and Doyne Gulling.

Mrs. Leland Graviett attended the guest book, and Mrs. Clyde Moran, Oran, and Mrs. Paul Kittle, Rolla, presided at the gift table at the reception in the church dining hall. Serving guests were: Mrs. Moran, Mrs. Lorin Leroy Vaughn, Mrs. Bob Kelley, Mrs. Benny Cook and Mrs. Bob Stokes.

Molded Ham Salad Pleases At Luncheon

When you have a pretty special molded ham loaf ready for luncheon, it's easy to approach the occasion with a feeling of confidence for its success.

Tomato sauce gives a good base for this ground ham loaf, advises widely-known meat authority Reba Staggs. Capers and horseradish add interesting flavor touches to sharpen its taste.

There are enough vegetables in this loaf to give it crunchiness, so it might be served with spiced pears or peaches and small muffins or toast triangles such as raisin or rye. An easy dessert would be brownies a la mode served with iced tea or coffee.

Party Best Ham Salad

- 2 cups ground cooked ham
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ⅓ cup cold water
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon capers
- 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
- ¼ cup drained pickle relish
- ½ cup thinly sliced celery
- 1 hard cooked egg, sliced

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Combine tomato sauce and 1 cup water in saucepan and heat to boiling. Add softened gelatin and lemon juice and chill until slightly thickened. Stir in ham, capers, horseradish, mayonnaise, onion, green pepper, pickle relish and celery. Arrange sliced egg lengthwise in a lightly greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pan. Pour in ham mixture. Chill 4 to 5 hours or until firm. Unmold. 6 to 8 servings.

Auto Jack Yanks Hedges

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Polly

DEAR POLLY—Anyone who plans to replace a hedge with a fence might like this tip. After pulling out two or three bushes in a hedge, my husband became so exasperated that he almost gave up the idea of pulling out the rest of the hedge. Suddenly he thought of hooking one end of a heavy rope on a car jack and tightly tying the other end to the bottom of the bush. It was so simple to work the jack and watch the roots come up that we finished the whole hedge in an hour's time.—MRS. S. L.

GIRLS—One of our tried and true gentlemen advisers says this seems so logical that he would try it if he were going to uproot shrubbery.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My husband does most of his own car repairs and when he has to get under the car he makes a hat out of a paper sack and fits it round his head. He keeps folding it until it fits like a cap and his hair stays clean.

I save all my partly soiled paper napkins and put them in a paper bag. They are ready for use for wiping up spilled grease, cleaning out ash trays and so on. I certainly save on paper towels.—NINA

DEAR POLLY—I sure like your ideas and would like to add one of my own. An empty salt carton that has a pouring spout is an ideal flour dispenser to keep near the stove to be ready when just a bit of flour is needed. Many steps are saved and the flour is available with a flip of the spout.—MRS. J. K.

GIRLS—It would be easy to fill the empty salt carton with flour if a small funnel is used.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My stainless steel cake carrier does double duty when my husband cannot always come home to dinner during our busy farm season. I fix his plate exactly as if he were going to eat at the table, put it in the cake carrier and transport it to the field where he is working. The metal covering keeps the food clean and warm.—FARMER'S WIFE

GIRLS—This would be an idea that could be adapted to many situations. Would help keep food warm when carrying to a sick room, to a neighbor and so on.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When you are writing with a ballpoint pen and it starts to skip simply rub the spot on the paper with an eraser and there will be no more trouble. I still learn from the helpful hints even though I am past 70. So best wishes and thanks.—HILDA.

Koufax Cuts Cardinals; Strikes Out Eleven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flare up, or no flare up, Sandy Koufax proved Sunday that he still has the best left arm in baseball.

The Los Angeles Dodger dandy cut down the Cardinals, 3-2, on five hits, Sunday in St. Louis. He struck out 11 and walked no one.

It was his first start after a minor controversy last week involving his golden left arm, which has been bothered by an arthritic condition since last season.

Rumors began circulating that Koufax's arthritic condition in his elbow had flared up after he lost to Cincinnati 4-1, last Wednesday night. Koufax emphatically denied it.

He proved Sunday he was right.

Koufax allowed only one hit in the first five innings, a single by rival pitcher Ray Sadecki. Sadecki hurled no-hit ball through five innings, but served home run pitches to Wes Parker and Jim Lefebvre in the sixth and seventh innings.

The Dodgers got only three hits off Sadecki in eight innings and Koufax drove in what proved to be the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh following an error by Phil Gagliano.

Lou Brock and Dick Groat hit back-to-back doubles with two out in the sixth for the first Cardinal run. With two out in the ninth, Curt Flood singled and Ken Boyer doubled for another run, but Gagliano popped out.

Tracy Stallard (7-4) will pitch for the Cardinals in the final contest of the four-game set tonight against the Dodgers. Johnny Podres (4-5) will hurl for Angeles.

Kansas City also ran into a stingy lefthander Sunday and lost to Washington, 3-2, in the opener of a doubleheader in Kansas City.

However, the A's grabbed the nightcap by the same score on the pitching of Jim Hunter and relivers Wes Stock and John Wyatt.

Southpaw Pete Richert beat the A's on seven hits in the first game as Frank Howard doubled in two runs and Dick Nen singled him home. Dick Green homered for both Kansas City runs.

Pinch-hitter Santiago Rosario singled in the decisive run in the sixth inning of the nightcap.

The A's are idle today.

SINKING his last putt of the 27 hole tournament held in Charleston Saturday and Sunday is J. D. Byrne of Charleston who finished on top with a 103 total.

KENNY VINSON of Sikeston finished in a tie with Jerry Brase for fifth place in the championship class of the invitational tourney. Both golfers turned in a 108 score for the 27 holes.

AL All-Stars Topped By Oran-New Madrid, Portageville Cope Wins In Tripleheader

In a tripleheader Saturday night at Puckett Field, the Little League Invitational tournament moved into full swing. In the first of the three games, Morehouse was handed a 24-1 defeat from a strong New Madrid team. The middle game saw Sikeston's American League All-Star team take a defeat from masterful pitching and a powerful hitting Oran nine. The last of the three games played fell to Portageville as they edged over Bertrand with a 6-4 score.

The first game between Morehouse and New Madrid started with a 1-0 New Madrid lead. In the second frame, however, New Madrid cut loose with seven bouncers to tally across 15 of their 24 runs and still held Morehouse scoreless. Morehouse scored their lone run in the third when Martin rounded the bags to score. Eight more runs were produced in the last two frames by New Madrid.

Robbins hurled New Madrid to a victory allowing only one hit by Finney and one run by Martin. He gave the loss to Wilkening who gave up 14 hits and 24 runs to the victors.

Baker lead New Madrid with a 3-4 hitting performance.

In the second game of the twinight, Oran muffed Sikeston's American League All-Stars 6-2. Sikeston was held without a hit from the Oran star hurler Shaffer.

Sikeston took an early 2-1 lead but was dropped in the third when Oran came back with three runs on two hits. Sikeston did not score after their two runs in the first. Two extra by Oran iced the victory.

Shaffer and Emerson led Oran in the pitching, Shaffer hurling the first four and Emerson taking care of the remaining two. Neither pitcher for Oran allowed a hit. Shipp, taking the loss, was relieved in the fifth after giving up eight hits and four runs. Allen relieved him gave up the last two runs and four hits.

Shaffer, not only pitching a marvelous game, led Oran with the stick. The hurler connected with a homer in the third and two doubles in the first and sixth.

In the last of three games, a contest between Portageville and Bertrand proved to be a victory for Portageville as they downed Bertrand with a close 6-4 score.

Portageville took the lead in the first inning of play and kept it throughout the rest of the contest. They scored two tallies on two smashers in that frame. Bertrand remained scoreless and hitless until the bottom of the fourth when they managed one run on a single and a double. After four, Portageville kept her lead with a 3-1 score. Portageville grabbed three in the last and held Bertrand to an extra three. That brought the final score to the books.

Long, the winning pitcher, and Nails, the losing pitcher, each allowed six hits to the opponents.

Killion, Portageville's ace shortstop, contributed three hits to the total six. A home run in the first inning by Long proved to aid Portageville's rampage.

Holifield singled and doubled for the losers.

Sikeston's four - man team, composed of Ken Vinson, Fred Tope, Gene Dawson and Clayton Vandivort, grabbed the number two place just one stroke out of first.

Russians Upset US; Asked " How Did It Happen

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A dazed U.S. track and field team licked its wounds today from its worst debacle ever in international competition — a loss to the Russians — and asked: "How did it happen?"

Were the Yanks too complacent and over-confident, as suggested by Russian Coach Gabriel Korobkov and seconded by high-ranking U.S. officials?

Did many of their stars wear themselves out in a month of campaigning on the continent prior to the seventh annual U.S.-Soviet meet Saturday and Sunday in this picturesque capital of the Ukraine?

Or was it simply a case of bad luck — mushrooming injuries that felled some of the best of the American athletes in the midst of the crucial meet?

The Russians scored a sweep, winning both the men's and women's competition for the first time since the series was started in 1958. It marked the first time American men track and field stars had ever lost a meet of this kind.

Scoring upsets in such American specialities as the pole vault and sprint relay and winning the 5,000 and 10,000 - meter runs, in which the United States had Olympic champions, the Soviet team beat out the U. S. men 118-112 and won for the seventh time from the women, as expected, 65 1/2-45 1/2.

It wasn't a complete disappointment from the American standpoint.

Wyomia Tyus of Griffin, Ga., established herself as the fastest woman runner in the world by winning the 100 meters in world record-tying time of 11.1 seconds, coming from far behind to spearhead a victory in the 400-meter relay and then finishing second Sunday in the 200 meters behind Edith McGuire.

A 15-year-old doll of a schoolgirl named Marie Mulder of North Highlands, Calif., had even the Russians cheering for her in finishing a strong second in the 800 meters with the fastest time ever recorded by an American woman — 2 minutes, 7.3 seconds.

In the men's division, Olan Gassell of Nutley, N.J., emerged as a giant by winning the 400 meters and then stealing the 1600-meter relay out from under the noses of the Russians with a come-from-behind anchor leg. Big Randy Matson of Pampa, Tex., awed the Russians with a 66 foot, 6½ inch shot put; six-foot-seven Dave Weill captured the discus with 192 feet, 5 inches and Jim Grelle, who won the 1,500 meter run in the first meet in 1958, did it again with a meet record of 3:39.2.

Mexican Cup Team Wins; Finals Today

DALLAS, Tex. - Spurred by a splendid doubles victory, the Mexican Davis Cup team launched an uphill bid today to seize the American Zone championship from the United States.

Faced with the monumental task are Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox, who must sweep both singles matches from Dennis Ralston and Arthur Ashe.

Osuna, Mexico's finest tennis player, square off against top-ranked Ralston and Palafox challenged Ashe, the amazing young Negro who stunned Osuna in the opener Saturday.

Osuna and Palafox brought Mexico back from the brink of elimination Sunday with an 8-6, 6-4, 7-5 triumph over Ralston and Ham Richardson.

It left Mexico trailing two matches to one.

The lithe Palafox was the top player as he and Osuna cut down the American bid for an early championship Sunday.

The U.S. team failed to break service by Palafox until the fourth game of the last set, and his overhead smashes and placements kept Richardson and Ralston in trouble throughout.

The Mexican duo concentrated on Richardson, obviously keeping the play away from Ralston and trying to wear down his 31-year-old teammate.

Richardson dropped his service four times, the final one in the 11th game of the third set. It pushed Mexico out front by 6-5 and set the stage for a sparkling love game behind Palafox's service to close out the match.

Koufax Cuts Cardinals; Strikes Out Eleven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flare up, or no flare up, Sandy Koufax proved Sunday that he still has the best left arm in baseball.

The Los Angeles Dodger dandy cut down the Cardinals, 3-2, on five hits, Sunday in St. Louis. He struck out 11 and walked no one.

It was his first start after a minor controversy last week involving his golden left arm, which has been bothered by an arthritic condition since last season.

Rumors began circulating that Koufax's arthritic condition in his elbow had flared up after he lost to Cincinnati 4-1, last Wednesday night. Koufax emphatically denied it.

He proved Sunday he was right.

Koufax allowed only one hit in the first five innings, a single by rival pitcher Ray Sadecki. Sadecki hurled no-hit ball through five innings, but served home run pitches to Wes Parker and Jim Lefebvre in the sixth and seventh innings.

The Dodgers got only three hits off Sadecki in eight innings and Koufax drove in what proved to be the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh following an error by Phil Gagliano.

Lou Brock and Dick Groat hit back-to-back doubles with two out in the sixth for the first Cardinal run. With two out in the ninth, Curt Flood singled and Ken Boyer doubled for another run, but Gagliano popped out.

Tracy Stallard (7-4) will pitch for the Cardinals in the final contest of the four-game set tonight against the Dodgers. Johnny Podres (4-5) will hurl for 'Angeles.

Kansas City also ran into a stingy lefthander Sunday and lost to Washington, 3-2, in the opener of a doubleheader in Kansas City.

However, the A's grabbed the nightcap by the same score on the pitching of Jim Hunter and relivers Wes Stock and John Wyatt.

Southpaw Pete Richert beat the A's on seven hits in the first game as Frank Howard doubled in two runs and Dick Nen singled him home. Dick Green homered for both Kansas City runs.

Pinch-hitter Santiago Rosario singled in the decisive run in the sixth inning of the nightcap.

The A's are idle today.

SINKING his last putt of the 27 hole tournament held in Charleston Saturday and Sunday is J. D. Byrne of Charleston who finished on top with a 103 total.

KENNY VINSON of Sikeston finished in a tie with Jerry Brase for fifth place in the championship class of the invitational tourney. Both golfers turned in a 108 score for the 27 holes.

AL All-Stars Topped By Oran-New Madrid, Portageville Cope Wins In Tripleheader

In a tripleheader Saturday night at Puckett Field, the Little League Invitational tournament moved into full swing. In the first of the three games, Morehouse was handed a 24-1 defeat from a strong New Madrid team. The middle game saw Sikeston's American League All-Star team take a defeat from masterful pitching and a powerful hitting Oran nine. The last of the three games played fell to Portageville as they edged over Bertrand with a 6-4 score.

The first game between Morehouse and New Madrid started with a 1-0 New Madrid lead. In the second frame, however, New Madrid cut loose with seven bouncers to tally across 15 of their 24 runs and still held Morehouse scoreless. Morehouse scored their lone run in the third when Martin rounded the bags to score. Eight more runs were produced in the last two frames by New Madrid.

Robbins hurled New Madrid to a victory allowing only one hit by Finney and one run by Martin. He gave the loss to Wilkening who gave up 14 hits and 24 runs to the victors.

Baker lead New Madrid with a 3-4 hitting performance.

In the second game of the twinight, Oran muffed Sikeston's American League All-Stars 6-2. Sikeston was held without a hit from the Oran star hurler Shaffer.

Sikeston took an early 2-1 lead but was dropped in the third when Oran came back with three runs on two hits. Sikeston did not score after their two runs in the first. Two extra by Oran iced the victory.

Shaffer and Emerson led Oran in the pitching, Shaffer hurling the first four and Emerson taking care of the remaining two. Neither pitcher for Oran allowed a hit. Shipp, taking the loss, was relieved in the fifth after giving up eight hits and four runs. Allen relieved him gave up the last two runs and four hits.

Shaffer, not only pitching a marvelous game, led Oran with the stick. The hurler connected with a homer in the third and two doubles in the first and sixth.

In the last of three games, a contest between Portageville and Bertrand proved to be a victory for Portageville as they downed Bertrand with a close 6-4 score.

Portageville took the lead in the first inning of play and kept it throughout the rest of the contest. They scored two tallies on two smashers in that frame. Bertrand remained scoreless and hitless until the bottom of the fourth when they managed one run on a single and a double. After four, Portageville kept her lead with a 3-1 score. Portageville grabbed three in the last and held Bertrand to an extra three. That brought the final score to the books.

Long, the winning pitcher, and Nails, the losing pitcher, each allowed six hits to the opponents.

Killion, Portageville's ace shortstop, contributed three hits to the total six. A home run in the first inning by Long proved to aid Portageville's rampage.

Holifield singled and doubled for the losers.

Cairo took the best four-man team and was also awarded a special prize.

Sikeston's four - man team, composed of Ken Vinson, Fred Tope, Gene Dawson and Clayton Vandivort, grabbed the number two place just one stroke out of first.

Any golfer winning the first place trophy three times will take it out of circulation permanently. J. D. Byrne took his second win of the Championship Class this year.

Local women golfers were on hand to feed the players and visitors.

The winners of the Championship Class were: J. D. Byrne, Charleston, 103, Buddy Godwin, Poplar Bluff, 105. Virgil Powell, Malden, 106, Charles Weber, 107, and Ken Vinson of Sikeston and Jerry Brase shared fifth place with 108.

Russians Upset US; Asked "How Did It Happen

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A dazed U.S. track and field team licked its wounds today from its worst debacle ever in international competition — a loss to the Russians — and asked: "How did it happen?"

Were the Yanks too complacent and over-confident, as suggested by Russian Coach Gabriel Korobkov and seconded by high-ranking U.S. officials?

Did many of their stars wear themselves out in a month of campaigning on the continent prior to the seventh annual U.S.-Soviet meet Saturday and Sunday in this picturesque capital of the Ukraine?

Or was it simply a case of bad luck — mushrooming injuries that felled some of the best of the American athletes in the midst of the crucial meet?

The Russians scored a sweep, winning both the men's and women's competition for the first time since the series was started in 1958. It marked the first time American men track and field stars had ever lost a meet of this kind.

Scoring upsets in such American specialities as the pole vault and sprint relay and winning the 5,000 and 10,000 - meter runs, in which the United States had Olympic champions, the Soviet team beat out the U. S. men 118-112 and won for the seventh time from the women, as expected, 65 1/2-45 1/2.

It wasn't a complete disappointment from the American standpoint.

Wyomia Tyus of Griffin, Ga., established herself as the fastest woman runner in the world by winning the 100 meters in world record-tying time of 11.1 seconds, coming from far behind to spearhead a victory in the 400-meter relay and then finishing second Sunday in the 200 meters behind Edith McGuire.

A 15-year-old doll of a schoolgirl named Marie Mulder of North Highlands, Calif., had even the Russians cheering for her in finishing a strong second in the 800 meters with the fastest time ever recorded by an American woman — 2 minutes, 7.3 seconds.

In the men's division, Olan Gassell of Nutley, N.J., emerged as a giant by winning the 400 meters and then stealing the 1600-meter relay out from under the noses of the Russians with a come-from-behind anchor leg. Big Randy Matson of Pampa, Tex., awed the Russians with a 66 foot, 6½ inch shot put; six-foot-seven Dave Weill captured the discus with 192 feet, 5 inches and Jim Grelle, who won the 1,500 meter run in the first meet in 1958, did it again with a meet record of 3:39.2.

Mexican Cup Team Wins; Finals Today

DALLAS, Tex. - Spurred by a splendid doubles victory, the Mexican Davis Cup team launched an uphill bid today to seize the American Zone championship from the United States.

Faced with the monumental task are Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox, who must sweep both singles matches from Dennis Ralston and Arthur Ashe.

Osuna, Mexico's finest tennis player, square off against top-ranked Ralston and Palafox challenged Ashe, the amazing young Negro who stunned Osuna in the opener Saturday.

Osuna and Palafox brought Mexico back from the brink of elimination Sunday with an 8-6, 6-4, 7-5 triumph over Ralston and Ham Richardson.

It left Mexico trailing two matches to one.

The lithe Palafox was the top player as he and Osuna cut down the American bid for an early championship Sunday.

The U.S. team failed to break service by Palafox until the fourth game of the last set, and his overhead smashes and placements kept Richardson and Ralston in trouble throughout.

The Mexican duo concentrated on Richardson, obviously keeping the play away from Ralston and trying to wear down his 31-year-old teammate.

Richardson dropped his service four times, the final one in the 11th game of the third set. It pushed Mexico out front by 6-5 and set the stage for a sparkling love game behind Palafox's service to close out the match.

Air above Germany Remains Undivided

BERLIN (AP) — The air above Germany remains undivided and even a Russian has been known to use it to send personal greetings.

It's all done over a radio station the Communists call the "agents' radio." But that did not prevent a Russian soldier from writing in to a listeners' message exchange program.

"Tell Panjinka I send her my regards," he wrote. He said his sweetheart lived near a Soviet garrison town in the Lausitz area of East Germany. He added he was now back home in the Urals.

The radio is RIAS — Radio in the American Sector of Berlin — which is sponsored by the U.S. Information Service.

Its program of exchange messages gathered momentum after the erection of the Berlin Wall in August, 1961. Joined by the German- sponsored Radio Free Berlin and Deutschland-Funk (German radio) in Cologne, the RIAS-piloted idea now averages 700 messages sent out each week.

The bulk of these are broadcast by RIAS on the program "Music Knows No Boundary."

Dr. Horst Kirstaedter, chief of the press and listener divisions at RIAS, said the station averages 27,000 to 30,000 listener letters of all types each month, with 2,000-3,000 of them from East Germany, East Berlin and Germans living in Polish or Soviet-administered territories.

Kirstaedter says RIAS programs are widely listened to in the Soviet Union itself, "especially our popular or jazz music shows."

The messages involving people in the East use nicknames and partial addresses that the intended listener will understand.

Missouri Ready to Cope With Mental Retardation

This is the first of a series of Missouri's new mental retardation program, which provides for the establishment of nine clinics throughout the state. The series is by Jack Stapleton Jr., Kennett publisher and president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health

By JACK STAPLETON JR.
Publisher the Daily Democrat

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Why has Missouri suddenly become so interested in mental retardation?

The question is a natural one, in view of a major piece of legislation enacted by the last Missouri General Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

This legislation, known as Senate Bill 198, provides for the establishment of nine new state mental retardation clinics, to be located throughout the state. This is a $9,000,000 program, much of it involving new hospital construction and equipping.

Why?

Well, for one thing, the state of Missouri now operates only two hospital facilities for the mentally retarded. One is located at St. Louis, the other at Marshall.

These facilities became outdated and unable to handle the problem years ago. The state did nothing, principally because needs were greater at the state hospitals than at the so-called state schools.

In 1962, Dr. George Ulett, director of the Missouri Division of Mental Diseases, proposed a program that was eventually submitted to the General Assembly in 1963. Dr. Ulett's plan was to establish three intensive treatment centers -- St. Louis, Columbia and Kansas City--to relieve some of the overcrowded conditions in the five state hospitals at Farmington, Fulton, St. Louis, Nevade and St. Joseph.

This, also a $9,000,000 program, was finally passed by the legislature.

With the intensive treatment center plan approved, and with two of them now in partial operation, the state could begin to look to some relief for the overcrowded state hospitals.

It should be understood, that neither the state hospitals nor the three intensive treatment centers treat those with mental retardation. The hospitals and centers concentrate on mental illness, which affects one out of every 10 Missourians and hospitalizes one out of every 17.

With the intensive treatment plan approved and actually underway, attention was turned to the needs of the state's mentally retarded children and adults.

It was found there are more than 130,000 mentally retarded citizens in Missouri. It has been estimated that approximately one-fourth of the population of the state is directly or indirectly affected by mental retardation, either through the affliction itself or through relatives of those who suffer from it.

In 1964, the Division of Mental Diseases and its technical staff members began evolving a plan to assist these Missourians. The division enlisted the aid and support of the Missouri Association for Retarded Children and the Missouri Association for Social Welfare. Welding all of these groups together, Dr. Ulett hammered out a regional mental retardation program that was culminated in the introduction of S. B. 198 in the last legislature.

Next--The beginning.

Begin Work On Bridge

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Work begins today on repairs to the U. S. 67 bridge over the Black River north of Poplar Bluff.

The state Highway Department said that its own crews will repair a damaged span while Paul Montgomery Inc. of Poplar Bluff will replace another span demolished in a truck accident July 22.

Work is expected to be completed in 60 days. Traffic will be rerouted over other highways during the period.

One 160-foot span was demolished and another 200-foot span was badly damaged July 22 when a truck hauling a heavy tractor struck the overhead steel structure.

Three Department crews--one from department headquarters in Jefferson City and two from district 10 headquarters at Sikeston--were expected this past weekend to complete clearing away enough of the twisted steel and debris left by the mishap so rebuilding could start.

Repairing it became almost a statewide operation. Department crews hauled in steel from supplies at various points, bridge designers in the main office rushed work on designing a new span which could be erected quickly with available material, crews at the headquarters garage rushed work on fabricating steel for the job and a contractor -- Paul Montgomery, Inc. of Poplar Bluff--was employed to rebuild the destroyed span. Repair work on the other damaged span will be done by the department's own crews at the same time.

During the work through traffic, other than trucks and buses, will be detoured over route 172 and supplementary route W. Trucks and buses will be detoured over routes 72 and 25 and U. S. route 60.

Start Repairs On River Bridge

POPLAR BLUFF -- Repairs were started on the Black River Highway 67 bridge at Hendrickson Thursday and work on the new Hilliard bridge is being expedited by the contractor in order to prepare the structure for re-opening on the Route W detour to help carry the traffic presently by-passing the fallen Hendrickson bridge.

W. D. Carney, Sikeston, division engineer for the Missouri State Highway Department, reported that the Hilliard bridge contractor is hauling base for the bridge approaches and expects to finish that phase of the work Friday.

The fill and base will be shaped and primed Monday, Carney said. Meanwhile, State Highway Department maintenance crews are working in the area to speed preparation of the road for general service.

Rape Hearings Set for Seven

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Preliminary hearings were set Wednesday in Pemiscot County Magistrate Court for seven men charged in two separate cases with forcible rape.

Prosecuting Attorney Sharon Pate said William Dial George, 20, and his brother, Ralph Douglas George, 18, both of Lepanto, Ark., and two Caruthersville brothers, Bobby Joe and Tommy Lynn Clay, 21, were arrested Sunday and charged with the forcible rape of a 19-year-old Caruthersville girl.

Pate said the incident occurred Saturday night when two car loads of young people drove to 14 Bend, a point on the river side of the levee north of Caruthersville. One other girl and two other boys were involved. The other girl, younger than the assault victim, was able to hold the boys off by threatening to kill them with a wrench she had in her hand. The other two boys did not take part and claimed to be as frightened as the girls.

Arraigned in court yesterday, their preliminary hearings were set for Wednesday, before Judge R. W. Hawkins. They did did not post bond and are being held in the Pemiscot County Jail.

In the other case, which also occurred Saturday night, three young men were arrested Monday after a 16-year-old girl was hospitalized and revealed that she had been raped.

The three were jailed Monday and made bond of $2,000 each and were released. The ages of the three, Johnny Lewis, Jackie George (no relation to the George brothers in the other case) and Archie Lack, were not given but Officer Hooper Taylor of the sheriff's office and Prosecuting Attorney Pate said all three were over 16-years-of-age.

Taylor said this incident occurred in the south end of the county at Pemiscot Bayou sometime Saturday night.

Preliminaries for the three young men have been set in Magistrate Court for Wednesday.

Student Shift In Charleston

CHARLESTON -- Ninth grade students in the Lincoln school will attend Charleston high school this year, the Mississippi County R-1 School Board of Education has decided.

The action came about after a committee of the board meeting July 17 decided in favor of the move.

Reasons given were: an increasing number of transfer applications from Lincoln school; the resulting imbalance in the teacher-pupil load at Lincoln in secondary grades; and the educational advantages of having all the high school students in the same building.

During the debate on the administration recommendation, it was brought out that four teachers in the Lincoln secondary division have resigned.

By bringing the ninth grade into the Charleston high school this year, these teachers would not have to be replaced, and the money for their salaries would be rechanneled to provide several services listed as deficient in the recent area inspector's report in the R-1 system.

Among the services to be added, provided personnel can be located, are two special education teachers, a librarian in junior high, a speech correctionist, industrial arts and homemaking instruction in the junior high school.

Long Reports on Anti-Snooping

WASHINGTON AP -- Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., reviewed for the Senate the progress made by his anti-snooping subcommittee.

One area of the subcommittee's investigation has been the Food and Drug Administration, in which Long said a number of eavesdropping and harrassment "abuses" had been found.

No criticism, no indictment or charge can prompt the FDA to even attempt to change its mode of operation," he said. "However, for the Senate's information, possible legislation is now under study to help FDA to accomplish that which they seem to have no desire nor intention to do themselves."

He praised a statement by the White House banning wiretapping in all cases except few involving national security. But he added there was a large area of electronic eavesdropping by means other than straight wiretapping and that this area needs rigid legislative control.

Long said the investigation will continue until the complete story is told.

"This may take some time, for, as can be expected, these agencies that have violated our citizens' rights are not about to cooperate in their own indictment," he said.

He said considerable progress had been made to convince the Post Office Department to change some practices the subcommittee considered to be invasions of privacy. He mentioned the closing of peepholes in bathrooms and dressing rooms of postoffices and tighter regulation of mail covers.

To Open Bids Aug. 26 for I-55 Plantings

The State Highway Commission will open bids Aug. 26 for beautification of Interstate Highway 55 between Jackson and Sikeston.

District 10 Engineer W. D. Carney said proposals may be submitted for separate projects in Cape Girardeau and Scott counties, or the work may be combined into one project.

Plans call for planting of 921 shrubs and trees in Cape Girardeau County, and 1,166 in Scott County. Twenty different varieties are called for, including maple, redbud, and flowering dogwood trees.

The beautification will be paid for on the same basis as the highway itself, with the federal government footing 90 per cent of the bill, and the state 10 per cent.

The stretch of highway is nearing completion, and part of it has been opened to traffic.

Billboards that have sprung up on the completed sections may detract from the beautification efforts.

Federal statutes provides extra funds for states that pass laws banning billboards on interstate highways, but the Missouri legislature has not taken this step.

John Glenn regards his church, not as a place to prove himself holier than others, but as a necessary force for good in the world. I have never known him, when he has been in town, to miss Sunday services. Usually he attends the early session and, in winter, often arrives early enough to help shovel snow off the walks.

John doesn't put his religion aside when he leaves the church. But again, he does not advertise his devotion. I had to learn from his children that each night, just before bedtime, the Glenn family read the Bible together.

They gather around--John, his wife, Annie, and their teen-age children, David and Lyn -- and each reads a verse in turn.

Air above Germany Remains Undivided

BERLIN (AP) — The air above Germany remains undivided and even a Russian has been known to use it to send personal greetings.

It's all done over a radio station the Communists call the "agents' radio." But that did not prevent a Russian soldier from writing in to a listeners' message exchange program.

"Tell Panjinka I send her my regards," he wrote. He said his sweetheart lived near a Soviet garrison town in the Lausitz area of East Germany. He added he was now back home in the Urals.

The radio is RIAS — Radio in the American Sector of Berlin — which is sponsored by the U.S. Information Service.

Its program of exchange messages gathered momentum after the erection of the Berlin Wall in August, 1961. Joined by the German-sponsored Radio Free Berlin and Deutschland-Funk (German radio) in Cologne, the RIAS-piloted idea now averages 700 messages sent out each week.

The bulk of these are broadcast by RIAS on the program "Music Knows No Boundary."

Dr. Horst Kirstaedter, chief of the press and listener divisions at RIAS, said the station averages 27,000 to 30,000 listener letters of all types each month, with 2,000-3,000 of them from East Germany, East Berlin and Germans living in Polish or Soviet-administered territories.

Kirstaedter says RIAS programs are widely listened to in the Soviet Union itself, "especially our popular or jazz music shows."

The messages involving people in the East use nicknames and partial addresses that the intended listener will understand.

Missouri Ready to Cope With Mental Retardation

This is the first of a series of Missouri's new mental retardation program, which provides for the establishment of nine clinics throughout the state. The series is by Jack Stapleton Jr., Kennett publisher and president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health

By JACK STAPLETON JR.
Publisher the Daily Democrat

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Why has Missouri suddenly become so interested in mental retardation?

The question is a natural one, in view of a major piece of legislation enacted by the last Missouri General Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

This legislation, known as Senate Bill 198, provides for the establishment of nine new state mental retardation clinics, to be located throughout the state. This is a $9,000,000 program, much of it involving new hospital construction and equipping.

Why?

Well, for one thing, the state of Missouri now operates only two hospital facilities for the mentally retarded. One is located at St. Louis, the other at Marshall.

These facilities became outdated and unable to handle the problem years ago. The state did nothing, principally because needs were greater at the state hospitals than at the so-called state schools.

In 1962, Dr. George Ulett, director of the Missouri Division of Mental Diseases, proposed a program that was eventually submitted to the General Assembly in 1963. Dr. Ulett's plan was to establish three intensive treatment centers -- St. Louis, Columbia and Kansas City--to relieve some of the overcrowded conditions in the five state hospitals at Farmington, Fulton, St. Louis, Nevade and St. Joseph.

This, also a $9,000,000 program, was finally passed by the legislature.

With the intensive treatment center plan approved, and with two of them now in partial operation, the state could begin to look to some relief for the overcrowded state hospitals.

It should be understood, that neither the state hospitals nor the three intensive treatment centers treat those with mental retardation. The hospitals and centers concentrate on mental illness, which affects one out of every 10 Missourians and hospitalizes one out of every 17.

With the intensive treatment plan approved and actually underway, attention was turned to the needs of the state's mentally retarded children and adults.

It was found there are more than 130,000 mentally retarded citizens in Missouri. It has been estimated that approximately one-fourth of the population of the state is directly or indirectly affected by mental retardation, either through the affliction itself or through relatives of those who suffer from it.

In 1964, the Division of Mental Diseases and its technical staff members began evolving a plan to assist these Missourians. The division enlisted the aid and support of the Missouri Association for Retarded Children and the Missouri Association for Social Welfare. Welding all of these groups together, Dr. Ulett hammered out a regional mental retardation program that was culminated in the introduction of S. B. 198 in the last legislature.

Next--The beginning.

Start Repairs On River Bridge

POPLAR BLUFF -- Repairs were started on the Black River Highway 67 bridge at Hendrickson Thursday and work on the new Hilliard bridge is being expedited by the contractor in order to prepare the structure for re-opening on the Route W detour to help carry the traffic presently by-passing the fallen Hendrickson bridge.

W. D. Carney, Sikeston, division engineer for the Missouri State Highway Department, reported that the Hilliard bridge contractor is hauling base for the bridge approaches and expects to finish that phase of the work Friday.

The fill and base will be shaped and primed Monday, Carney said. Meanwhile, State Highway Department maintenance crews are working in the area to speed preparation of the road for general service.

KENNETT HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS will be using this new two-story addition when school opens this fall. Construction is almost completed at this date and the interior is now being finished and prepared for use. The lower floor houses facilities for the music department, a choral room and a listening room, and the upper story provides an additional classroom.

Begin Work On Bridge

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Work begins today on repairs to the U. S. 67 bridge over the Black River north of Poplar Bluff.

The state Highway Department said that its own crews will repair a damaged span while Paul Montgomery Inc. of Poplar Bluff will replace another span demolished in a truck accident July 22.

Work is expected to be completed in 60 days. Traffic will be rerouted over other highways during the period.

One 160-foot span was demolished and another 200-foot span was badly damaged July 22 when a truck hauling a heavy tractor struck the overhead steel structure.

Three Department crews--one from department headquarters in Jefferson City and two from district 10 headquarters at Sikeston--were expected this past weekend to complete clearing away enough of the twisted steel and debris left by the mishap so rebuilding could start.

Repairing it became almost a statewide operation. Department crews hauled in steel from supplies at various points, bridge designers in the main office rushed work on designing a new span which could be erected quickly with available material, crews at the headquarters garage rushed work on fabricating steel for the job and a contractor -- Paul Montgomery, Inc. of Poplar Bluff--was employed to rebuild the destroyed span. Repair work on the other damaged span will be done by the department's own crews at the same time.

During the work through traffic, other than trucks and buses, will be detoured over route 172 and supplementary route W. Trucks and buses will be detoured over routes 72 and 25 and U. S. route 60.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

The heavens are telling the glory of God; and the firmament proclaims his handiwork. (Psalm 19:1, RSV))

PRAYER: Great God, creator of the heavens, the earth, and the sea, we thank Thee for those great experiences in life when the universe proclaims Thy handiwork. When we are confronted by nature's cruelty and man's sinfulness, and all seems dark with evil, cause us to remember some experiences of the beauty of Thy world and the glories of Thy universe as a promise of the ultimate triumph of righteousness. We pray in Jesus name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Perhaps if my children see this in your column they will believe it. I cannot seem to get through to them. Please ask your printers to put the next sentence in large type.

I DO NOT WANT A TV SET.

Let me explain. I am a widow with three lovely daughters. They are generous, kind and thoughtful. Their husbands are grand, too. My children would do anything in the world for me.

For three years they have been trying to give me a TV set for Christmas, Mother's Day, Easter--anything. I happen to enjoy the radio and I also read books. I don't want a TV set.

Yesterday my oldest daughter called and said, "Mother, please let us buy you a TV for Labor Day--even if you never turn it on. We want you to have one just so the neighbors can see the antenna."

I don't want a TV set, Ann, and I wish they'd quit pestering me. Please help. --A FREAK NO DOUBT

Dear No Freak: Let your children buy you an antenna. Tell them they can skip the set.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 13-year-old son is a good boy. He seems bright enough at home but for some reason he does poorly in school.

The real problem is that Douglas is unhappy because he has no friends. The children in the neighborhood pick on him. His classmates are mean and snobbish. They never include him in their social activities. Naturally the boy feels very much alone.

My husband and I are considering putting Douglas in another school. We have even thought of selling our home and moving to another neighborhood. It stands to reason that this unfriendly atmosphere will have a permanently damaging effect on our son.

Please comment on Christian charity. Is it a thing of the past? --DISILLUSIONED

Dear Disillusioned: It's pathetic that parents would want their son to be accepted out of "charity" rather than for his personal worth.

Changing schools will not offer any answers. And neither will moving to another neighborhood --because you'll be taking the problem with you. The problem is Douglas. The kids are reacting to Douglas' personality, which must be obnoxious. And you don't help by making excuses for the boy.

The school counselor or your physician can guide you. I hope you will get the boy the help he needs or he'll always be out of step.

Dear Ann Landers: Fd like to sit in your chair for a few minutes and say a few words to that high school girl who said she'd rather stay at home than accept a date with a creep.

I had the same idea when I was in high school--and I sat home plenty. Several years later I realized that today's creep might be tomorrow's prize. I know now that every person has a blooming period and sometimes the late bloomer has the more genuine and more durable bloom.

The self-centered girl who doesn't want to be bothered with the awkward and shy lad may have passed up a rare jewel. The girl who has good sense will go out with the "creep." It could be precisely what the boy needs to gain confidence and make him less creepy on the next date.--SMJ

Dear SMJ: You've said it in a different way. My battle cry for teen-age girls is this: Quit running after the two or three hot shots in the crowd. The ability to recognize potential can be the most rewarding talent of all.

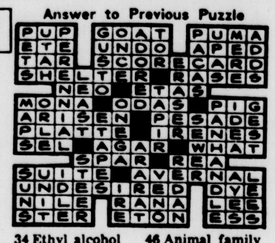

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Changing schools will not offer any answers. And neither will moving to another neighborhood --because you'll be taking the problem with you. The problem is Douglas. The kids are reacting to Douglas' personality, which must be obnoxious. And you don't help by making excuses for the boy.

The school counselor or your physician can guide you. I hope you will get the boy the help he needs or he'll always be out of step.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to sit in your chair for a few minutes and say a few words to that high school girl who said she'd rather stay at home than accept a date with a creep.

I had the same idea when I was in high school--and I sat home plenty. Several years later I realized that today's creep might be tomorrow's prize. I know now that every person has a blooming period and sometimes the late bloomer has the more genuine and more durable bloom.

The self-centered girl who doesn't want to be bothered with the awkward and shy lad may have passed up a rare jewel. The girl who has good sense will go out with the "creep." It could be precisely what the boy needs to gain confidence and make him less creepy on the next date.--SMJ

Dear SMJ: You've said it in a different way. My battle cry for teen-age girls is this: Quit running after the two or three hot shots in the crowd. The ability to recognize potential can be the most rewarding talent of all.

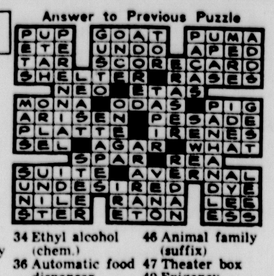

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Recession Fears May Be Alleviated

NEW YORK -- President Johnson may have alleviated some of the fears of a recession in 1966 by his decision for a moderate stepup in the war in Viet Nam.

Businessmen are noting that: There will be more government spending -- meaning more orders for many lines of industry and thus in due course for the economy in general; for the time being at least, there's no threat of government controls over wages and prices, nor of higher taxes, especially the dreaded excess profits tax; and the government seems determined to continue its drive to keep the civilian economy growing.

Fears of a possible recession or high-level stall next year have been based on signs of a slowing business boom seemingly in need of fresh stimulation.

Expansion of the Viet Nam war effort in increasing doses, if the war drags on, as many think is likely, can offer such impetus. As a pep pill the military spending's effectiveness would be heightened because, as presently outlined, it would put very little strain on the economy.

The moderate though continuing rise in spending--one or two billion more--also seems as of now to put only a relatively small chill on prospects for later tax cuts. This is because a growing economy, however stimulated, can furnish more Treasury revenues--enough to take care of the Pentagon's new needs, nourish a start toward the "Great Society," and still leave room for tax cuts as an added stimulus, when and if needed.

The increased war effort as outlined by President Johnson Wednesday has these prospects for business:

Many firms will get orders for defense goods--hardware, or textiles, or food. The increase in the armed forces will mean larger personnel payrolls and more activity around training centers in this country.

The doubling of the draft call will largely affect youths in the late teens and early 20s. It is this group which is expanding the fastest in number--and which has the highest percentage unable to find jobs.

The decision not to call up reserves at this time will reassure many companies who had wondered if they'd be losing temporarily some highly skilled men, often engaged in work lines where labor shortages exist.

But for the vast majority of American companies -- those who produce goods and services in demand by civilians--the biggest relief today may be that no emergency has been declared.

This means that those who get increased government orders can be helped without an accompanying crippling of other firms. Emergency controls always carry the threat of hobbling civilian industry, either in manpower or access to materials.

NEW YORK AP -- The coffee break is now almost universally accepted, the National Industrial Conference Board reports.

The board said a survey shows up to 97 per cent of companies now permit time out for coffee.

SANTA FE, N. M. AP -- Santa Clara Indians, whose fathers knew a great deal about New Mexico game animals, are going to school this week to learn modern game management. A federal antipoverty program is financing New Mexico Game Department instruction.

CRANSTON, R. I. AP -- A ban on card playing and daytime television watching in Cranston fire stations has been imposed by Mayor James Diprete Jr. He directed firemen to train when they are not responding to fires or cleaning house.

DECATUR, Ill. AP -- The county-run Macon Acres Nursing Home, in operation about 100 years, has discharged its last 14 patients and is ready to end its operations.

The Board of Supervisors ordered the facility closed after voters rejected a $550,000 bond issue to build a county old people's home. The last 14 inmates were transferred to other facilities.

BOSTON AP -- The open air in Boston is contaminated about one in five days, according to a joint federal-state health report.

WASHINGTON AP -- Army and State Department officials have endorsed legislation to pay some $22 million in Okinawans for claims arising from occupation of their lands by U. S. armed forces between the end of World War II and the 1952 signing of the Japanese peace treaty.

MORBIDITY SERVICES

Adult Health, including cancer, heart disease, diabetes and other chronic illness:

Admissions to service 184;
Admissions to hospitals through our efforts 29;
Conferences with private physicians 280;
Special services: -- Sterilized packets of dressings for cancer patients 6433; Bottles of insulin furnished at low cost to diabetics 65;
Field visits to patients 1477;
Office visits by patients 645;
Total number of services rendered 4109;
Time spent doing morbidity services 2397 1/2 hrs.

Any service that requires 1477 field visits from a Health Department the size of ours in a single year is most important.

Diabetics who had difficulty paying for insulin were able to purchase it at cost through the Health Department. Most of these over 65 years old now get insulin free through the Welfare program. The nurses, when requested to do so by private physicians, helped patients with their prescribed diets, and showed those having insulin how to administer the proper dose to themselves safely and accurately.

Missouri is one of 3 states with the highest population over 65 years of age. Any Missouri County, including Scott, has all the problems that go with aging. More than half of our total deaths were due to diseases of the heart and blood vessels -- cardiovascular diseases--, with 20% of those due to strokes. Most of the persons with these illnesses did not die. Public Health Nurses were asked by physicians to visit patients at home to help teach families how to care for them, how to give rehabilitation exercises, or how to give "shots" when they were required.

The cancer load becomes heavier as the population ages. Our cancer load is always heavy. The helpful women of our county made the thousands of cancer dressings of all sizes and types that went into the 6433 packets of dressings that were assembled and sterilized by our nurses for use of cancer patients.

Cancer research and clinical control made more progress in the past 20 years than in all our medical past.

Twenty years ago, uterine cancer was the leading cause of cancer death in women. Today the rate is half what it was then.

Twenty years ago, lung cancer was mounting for reasons no one knew, and with no hope of control. Today though it is still rising (47,000 deaths in U.S.A. in 1964 with 6 of them in Scott Co.), we know that cigarette smoking is the principal cause; that 75% of deaths could be prevented.

Empysema, a chronic respiratory disease was a fast growing cause of illness and death in 1964. Most of the cases were not diagnosed until there was severe disability. It, too, has been linked to cigarette smoking.

Cardio - vascular disease, emphysema, and lung cancer are all associated with cigarette smoking. How does one persuade men and women to not smoke the cigarettes that incapacitates and kills them?

New plans to change smoking habits involve 4 phases.

1. Continue the program to reach teen-agers. Starting cigarette smoking must be less fashionable in high schools than it is today.
2. Education of adults to the hazards of smoking. Tobacco Industry spends $2,000,000 a year on advertising.
3. Continued research on just how smoking effects the human body, on how and why it causes heart attacks, lung cancer and emphysema.
4. See that health of the American people gets, if not equal time, at least warning time on every radio and television cigarette commercial, and warning space in every newspaper and magazine cigarette advertisement.

MENTAL RETARDATION AND MENTAL HEALTH

Admissions to service 18;
Admissions to hospitals 5;
Conferences with private physians 22;
Field visits to patients 123;
Office visits by patients 92;
Total number of services 435;
Hours spent doing Mental Health 214;

A very few years ago our mentally retarded and mentally ill were literally "swept under the rug." The general attitude was, if we ignored this problem, it might go away. It did not. Our School for the Feeble - Minded at Marshall, and our Mental Hospitals were filled with hopeless, unwanted people who escaped only when released by death. There was no space in our institutions for new cases.

The Health Department helped file applications that always came to nothing. When parents became desperate, the Health Department personnel listened for hours while mothers poured out the stories of their frustrations. There was no place for the unfortunate child, and no help was to be found. He was not accepted in the public schools, nor by society.

Many parents spent all they had, and went deeply in debt trying to find one reputable doctor who would promise to make this youngster normal.

There is still much to be done. But mothers and fathers of retarded children found by talking to each other that all had common problems and that by organizing, much could be done to help improve the outlook for the child and for other members of the families.

Six years ago, special education classes were organized in each school district in the state for girls and boys with an IQ from 48 to 70. These were considered teachable. They were given an opportunity to compete only with others of similar capabilities.

In 1964, Scott County started its first area school for trainable children. These, with an IQ of 25 to 48, attended school at Sikeston. The class was under the direct control of the State Board of Education.

Opportunity was also given to refer the children to clinics for multiple handicapped children for evaluation.

The treatment of our mentally ill has also undergone a radical change. No longer are patients sent to the Farmington State Hospital to remain for the rest of their lives. When hospitalized, treatment was started at once. If they could be returned to their home communities soon, better adjustment could be made.

Out-patient clinics were set up at Farmington, Dexter and Cape Girardeau where, with little driving, patients could be seen each month. Progress was thus watched and medication was adjusted as needed. New drugs made shorter stays in the hospital possible.

Where does the Health Department fit in all this? We made referrals. We filled out application papers. And we continued to be good listeners.

The millennium is not yet. But it is a long step in the right direction.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL CLASSROOM AIDS HAVE NEW LOOK

NEW YORK -- School supplies have come a long, long way since the days of the little red schoolhouse, and this year's crop of back-to-school items is designed to make classroom study almost a pleasure.

For example, Anne Winfield, family adviser for the F. W. Woolworth Co., points to the new combination sets which include just about everything a student will need for the semester all put together in one package. There's a heavy-duty loose-leaf binder with filler paper; an index of knowledge divided into English, Math, Science, Social Studies, History and Spelling; a composition book; a Space Atlas (which features the latest information on orbital flight, re-entry, the families of planets, etc.); an assignment book, and ruler, pencil eraser and sharpener set.

On the subject of loose-leaf notebooks, the big design news this year, says Miss Winfield, is the "piano-hinge" binder. The new hinge makes binders stronger, lets you open them flat and protects against ripping. Some of the binders come with metal edges to prevent that ragged look by the time the term is half over.

A significant trend of the times, says Miss Winfield, is the growth of Woolworth's sales of slide rules and architects and engineering scales. As recently as three years ago there were few requests for these items but the increased emphasis on science and mathematics has created a demand for them, both at the secondary school and college level.

For writing equipment this year the key words are cartridge pens and markers. The versatile fine tip marker that can write on just about anything threatens to challenge the ball point as the most popular writing tool at all school levels, Miss Winfield says.

Another standard back-to-school item that may feel a competitor nipping at its heels this year is the schoolbag. Miss Winfield says the current popularity of the James Bond movies may spur a demand for the attache case instead!

CATHY CURTIS, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Curtis of Hayti, holds a first place trophy she won at the Twirling Clinic held at Arkansas State College. She won the top honor from a group of 57 students in the beginner's division. She will be a Junior high cheerleader at Hayti next year.

EARBUSTER — The world's loudest sound generating system, the Northrop Mark VII, is testing component systems of the Apollo spacecraft in Los Angeles to assure their ability to withstand tremendous noise pressures generated under launch conditions. The generator is capable of developing 400,000 acoustic watts. An ordinary home hi-fi set played sufficiently loud to warrant neighbor complaints would generate approximately one acoustic watt.

Tony Bennett Tries His Luck in Los Angeles

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tony Bennett, the man who lost his heart in San Francisco, is trying his luck in Los Angeles — as a movie actor.

He is over at Paramount for his first screen role in "The Oscar." He plays a benevolent press agent, and that's a switch in movies about Hollywood; usually the flack is a venal schemer who delights in stomping on stars while they're down.

"I'm all through the story and I even narrate it," the compactly built singer reported in the Paramount commissary. "No, I don't sing a note in the picture. I might record a song from it later, but I wouldn't sing it over the titles. That would be stepping off the curb."

He means, I suppose, that he wants to make strides as an actor and not borrow on his singing fame. His credentials as an actor?

"Well, I studied acting for three years at the American Theater Wing," he explained. "And I've done some summer stock in shows like 'Guys and Dolls' and 'Silk Stockings.'

"But more than that, I figure I'm acting every night I step out on a stage."

There are many to attest to that, notably the chief Bennett booster, Frank Sinatra. "For my money, Tony Bennett is the best singer in the business, the best exponent of a song," Sinatra has said. "He's the singer who gets across what the composer has in mind, and probably a little more."

In truth, the ability to sell a song has proven the stepping stone to many a movie career; not only Sinatra's, but those of Bing Crosby, Doris Day, Betty Grable, Dean Martin, Dick Powell, and others who started out as pop singers.

This is a whole new way of life to Tony, and he is still trying to adjust to it. The biggest wrench is switching to a day person.

"For 15 years I've been on the road, working at night mostly," he said. "Now I've got to learn how to get up in the morning. It ain't easy."

One of the highest paid performers in the music field, Bennett admitted he took a loss to remain here for "The Oscar." But it is a new facet of his career that he wants to pursue.

"But I would never give up singing to live audiences," he added. "That's my life; that's where I get my greatest satisfaction."

MORBIDITY SERVICES

Adult Health, including cancer, heart disease, diabetes and other chronic illness:

Admissions to service 184;
Admissions to hospitals through our efforts 29;
Conferences with private physicians 280;
Special services: -- Sterilized packets of dressings for cancer patients 6433; Bottles of insulin furnished at low cost to diabetics 65;
Field visits to patients 1477;
Office visits by patients 645;
Total number of services rendered 4109;
Time spent doing morbidity services 2397 1/2 hrs.

Any service that requires 1477 field visits from a Health Department the size of ours in a single year is most important.

Diabetics who had difficulty paying for insulin were able to purchase it at cost through the Health Department. Most of these over 65 years old now get insulin free through the Welfare program. The nurses, when requested to do so by private physicians, helped patients with their prescribed diets, and showed those having insulin how to administer the proper dose to themselves safely and accurately.

Missouri is one of 3 states with the highest population over 65 years of age. Any Missouri County, including Scott, has all the problems that go with aging. More than half of our total deaths were due to diseases of the heart and blood vessels -- cardiovascular diseases--, with 20% of those due to strokes. Most of the persons with these illnesses did not die. Public Health Nurses were asked by physicians to visit patients at home to help teach families how to care for them, how to give rehabilitation exercises, or how to give "shots" when they were required.

The cancer load becomes heavier as the population ages. Our cancer load is always heavy. The helpful women of our county made the thousands of cancer dressings of all sizes and types that went into the 6433 packets of dressings that were assembled and sterilized by our nurses for use of cancer patients.

Cancer research and clinical control made more progress in the past 20 years than in all our medical past.

Twenty years ago, uterine cancer was the leading cause of cancer death in women. Today the rate is half what it was then.

Twenty years ago, lung cancer was mounting for reasons no one knew, and with no hope of control. Today though it is still rising (47,000 deaths in U.S.A. in 1964 with 6 of them in Scott Co.), we know that cigarette smoking is the principal cause; that 75% of deaths could be prevented.

Empysema, a chronic respiratory disease was a fast growing cause of illness and death in 1964. Most of the cases were not diagnosed until there was severe disability. It, too, has been linked to cigarette smoking.

Cardio - vascular disease, emphysema, and lung cancer are all associated with cigarette smoking. How does one persuade men and women to not smoke the cigarettes that incapacitates and kills them?

New plans to change smoking habits involve 4 phases.

1. Continue the program to reach teen-agers. Starting cigarette smoking must be less fashionable in high schools than it is today.

2. Education of adults to the hazards of smoking. Tobacco Industry spends $2,000,000 a year on advertising.

3. Continued research on just how smoking effects the human body, on how and why it causes heart attacks, lung cancer and emphysema.

4. See that health of the American people gets, if not equal time, at least warning time on every radio and television cigarette commercial, and warning space in every newspaper and magazine cigarette advertisement.

MENTAL RETARDATION AND MENTAL HEALTH

Admissions to service 18;
Admissions to hospitals 5;
Conferences with private physians 22;
Field visits to patients 123;
Office visits by patients 92;
Total number of services 435;
Hours spent doing Mental Health 214;

A very few years ago our mentally retarded and mentally ill were literally "swept under the rug." The general attitude was, if we ignored this problem, it might go away. It did not. Our School for the Feeble - Minded at Marshall, and our Mental Hospitals were filled with hopeless, unwanted people who escaped only when released by death. There was no space in our institutions for new cases.

The Health Department helped file applications that always came to nothing. When parents became desperate, the Health Department personnel listened for hours while mothers poured out the stories of their frustrations. There was no place for the unfortunate child, and no help was to be found. He was not accepted in the public schools, nor by society.

Many parents spent all they had, and went deeply in debt trying to find one reputable doctor who would promise to make this youngster normal.

There is still much to be done. But mothers and fathers of retarded children found by talking to each other that all had common problems and that by organizing, much could be done to help improve the outlook for the child and for other members of the families.

Six years ago, special education classes were organized in each school district in the state for girls and boys with an IQ from 48 to 70. These were considered teachable. They were given an opportunity to compete only with others of similar capabilities.

In 1964, Scott County started its first area school for trainable children. These, with an IQ of 25 to 48, attended school at Sikeston. The class was under the direct control of the State Board of Education.

Opportunity was also given to refer the children to clinics for multiple handicapped children for evaluation.

The treatment of our mentally ill has also undergone a radical change. No longer are patients sent to the Farmington State Hospital to remain for the rest of their lives. When hospitalized, treatment was started at once. If they could be returned to their home communities soon, better adjustment could be made.

Out-patient clinics were set up at Farmington, Dexter and Cape Girardeau where, with little driving, patients could be seen each month. Progress was thus watched and medication was adjusted as needed. New drugs made shorter stays in the hospital possible.

Where does the Health Department fit in all this? We made referrals. We filled out application papers. And we continued to be good listeners.

The millennium is not yet. But it is a long step in the right direction.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL CLASSROOM AIDS HAVE NEW LOOK

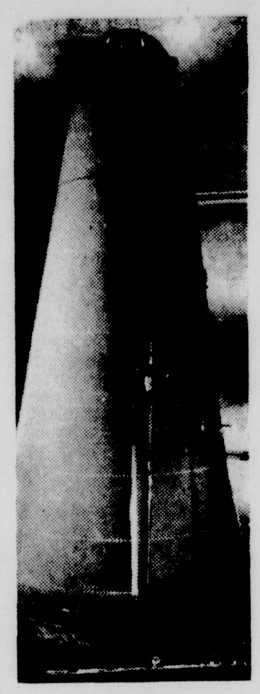

NEW YORK -- School supplies have come a long, long way since the days of the little red schoolhouse, and this year's crop of back-to-school items is designed to make classroom study almost a pleasure.

For example, Anne Winfield, family adviser for the F. W. Woolworth Co., points to the new combination sets which include just about everything a student will need for the semester all put together in one package. There's a heavy-duty loose-leaf binder with filler paper; an index of knowledge divided into English, Math, Science, Social Studies, History and Spelling; a composition book; a Space Atlas (which features the latest information on orbital flight, re-entry, the families of planets, etc.); an assignment book, and ruler, pencil eraser and sharpener set.

On the subject of loose-leaf notebooks, the big design news this year, says Miss Winfield, is the "piano-hinge" binder. The new hinge makes binders stronger, lets you open them flat and protects against ripping. Some of the binders come with metal edges to prevent that ragged look by the time the term is half over.

A significant trend of the times, says Miss Winfield, is the growth of Woolworth's sales of slide rules and architects and engineering scales. As recently as three years ago there were few requests for these items but the increased emphasis on science and mathematics has created a demand for them, both at the secondary school and college level.

For writing equipment this year the key words are cartridge pens and markers. The versatile fine tip marker that can write on just about anything threatens to challenge the ball point as the most popular writing tool at all school levels, Miss Winfield says.

EARBUSTER — The world's loudest sound generating system, the Northrop Mark VII, is testing component systems of the Apollo spacecraft in Los Angeles to assure their ability to withstand tremendous noise pressures generated under launch conditions. The generator is capable of developing 400,000 acoustic watts. An ordinary home hi-fi set played sufficiently loud to warrant neighbor complaints would generate approximately one acoustic watt.

Another standard back-to-school item that may feel a competitor nipping at its heels this year is the schoolbag. Miss Winfield says the current popularity of the James Bond movies may spur a demand for the attache case instead!

Tony Bennett Tries His Luck in Los Angeles

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tony Bennett, the man who lost his heart in San Francisco, is trying his luck in Los Angeles — as a movie actor.

He is over at Paramount for his first screen role in "The Oscar." He plays a benevolent press agent, and that's a switch in movies about Hollywood; usually the flack is a venal schemer who delights in stomping on stars while they're down.

"I'm all through the story and I even narrate it," the compactly built singer reported in the Paramount commissary. "No, I don't sing a note in the picture. I might record a song from it later, but I wouldn't sing it over the titles. That would be stepping off the curb."

He means, I suppose, that he wants to make strides as an actor and not borrow on his singing fame. His credentials as an actor?

"Well, I studied acting for three years at the American Theater Wing," he explained. "And I've done some summer stock in shows like 'Guys and Dolls' and 'Silk Stockings.'

"But more than that, I figure I'm acting every night I step out on a stage."

There are many to attest to that, notably the chief Bennett booster, Frank Sinatra. "For my money, Tony Bennett is the best singer in the business, the best exponent of a song," Sinatra has said. "He's the singer who gets across what the composer has in mind, and probably a little more."

In truth, the ability to sell a song has proven the stepping stone to many a movie career; not only Sinatra's, but those of Bing Crosby, Doris Day, Betty Grable, Dean Martin, Dick Powell, and others who started out as pop singers.

This is a whole new way of life to Tony, and he is still trying to adjust to it. The biggest wrench is switching to a day person.

"For 15 years I've been on the road, working at night mostly," he said. "Now I've got to learn how to get up in the morning. It ain't easy."

One of the highest paid performers in the music field, Bennett admitted he took a loss to remain here for "The Oscar." But it is a new facet of his career that he wants to pursue.

"But I would never give up singing to live audiences," he added. "That's my life; that's where I get my greatest satisfaction."

Incredible Week Of Capital Action

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — This was the week that was almost incredible for combined presidential action and congressional achievement, when judged against other weeks and even other years.

The President talked to the nation, upped the war in Viet Nam, conferred and consulted, created a crime commission and made a number of appointments of far-reaching importance.

Congress approved some measures which just a few years ago would have seemed impossible of passage.

Every day since the middle of last week President Johnson had been conferring with his advisers on how to cope with the advancing tide of guerrillas in Viet Nam.

In the midst of the conferences things popped and got bigger.

Monday Johnson appointed a 19-man commission to study crime in America and also named Rep. Oren Harris, Arkansas Democrat, to be a federal judge in the U.S. District Court in his home state.

The next day, Tuesday, Johnson signed a bill requiring cigarette packages to carry a health warning. And, to everyone's surprise, he selected Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze, who got his job from President John F. Kennedy in 1962 after he had been mayor of Cleveland five times, to be a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Ohio.

To his cabinet post Johnson named John W. Gardner, Republican, educator, writer and president of the Carnegie Corporation. And for Wednesday, Johnson called a news conference to talk about Viet Nam.

At the news conference he first disclosed that he was sending 50,000 troops to Viet Nam immediately to join the 75,000 already there and was increasing draft calls. Then he warned of more troups being sent and said the United States was determined to stop the guerrillas. At the same time he urged peace talks. This was all carefully prepared and delivered.

But so was what followed: The two big surprises of the day.

1. He was naming a friend of 30 years, attorney Abe Fortas, to the Supreme Court to succeed Arthur J. Goldberg who was plucked off the court by Johnson to succeed the late Adlai E. Stevenson as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

2. He had chosen John W. Chancellor, NBC's chief White House correspondent, to be director of the Voice of America.

Thursday, the President briefed governors on the Viet Nam situation.

Meanwhile, Congress was doing things which will remain memorable in American history and in other years would have seemed sensational not only for their nature but for being lumped all into one week.

Johnson has been so adroit at getting the men in the Capitol to approve what he wants that much of the history-making legislation going through Congress this year seems taken for granted.

This week Congress gave a final okay not only to changes and improvements in Social Security but for the first time created a program of medical care for people 65 or older.

This medical care program, opposed by various forces for two decades, is the most sweeping advance in the social welfare field since Social Security itself was established by Congress in 1935.

On top of this a House and Senate Conference Committee, set up to iron out differences between both bodies, approved a bill to protect Negroes' voting rights in the South, one of the most important civil rights measures in history.

Final, formal approval by both houses will be routine. In agreeing to the bill, the committee knocked out a controversial section banning poll taxes in state and local elections.

Congress also this week approved a four-year, $7.5-billion housing and urban development bill which includes rent subsidies for low-income families. It now goes to Johnson to be signed into law.

In addition, the Senate passed flood control bills, which the House is expected to approve, and the House knocked out a section of the federal labor law that permits states to ban union shops. This won't be final until the Senate acts. There may be a fight there.

MISSOURI HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT bridge crews have been mobilized in an emergency move to clear the fallen approach span on the Highway 67, Hendrickson Bridge, that collapsed Thursday near Poplar Bluff. The tangled superstructure was removed after workmen cut the steel uprights from the bridge deck structure. Two crawler tractors were used to topple the structure and drag it off from the fallen span. In photo at left, one of the tractors may be seen pawing the dust as the superstructure finally gave way after several attempts. A second tractor was operating out of the range of the camera at the right. In the photo at right, the bridge deck lies exposed with the collapsed superstructure hauled to the east side of the bridge site where it will eventually be cut up and removed. Workers began dismantling the bridge at once.

Sinews of U.S. Might Give Top Performance

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK — The sinews of American might — steel, nonferrous metals, oil, chemicals — are performing at top form. Major companies in these fields are reporting peak production and sales. And most of them are flexing their profits.

With few exceptions, the basic suppliers to American industry are reporting impressive gains in net income in the second quarter of 1965 compared with the like period of 1964. This maintains the spread that brightened the first three months of this year.

In the three months just ended steel companies translated record shipments into profit figures to delight stockholders. Among those reporting so far: U.S. Steel netted $81 million, up $20.3 million from the $60.7 million in the 1964 second quarter; Republic $24.4 million up from $17.7 million; National, $24.4 million from $20.6 million; Armco, $24 million from $18 million.

Producers of nonferrous metals and their products also have been prospering on increased demand, fed both by the business boom and war threats. Kennecott Copper reports second quarter profits of $27.9 million against $21.5 million a year ago; Magma Copper $4.6 million against $4.5 million.

Aluminum Co. of America compares a $22.4 million second quarter with a year ago figure of $16.9 million. Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical reports $11 million this year against $7.5 million last. And Reynolds Metals has a $15-million second quarter this year against a $9-million one in 1964.

Oil profits have been flowing freely, thanks to steadily growing civilian and military use. Ahead this April-June quarter over last year are: Gulf Oil, $104 million, up $13 million over the year ago figure; Socony Mobil, $78 million, up by $7.5 million; Shell, $60.4 million, up by $13.8 million; Indiana Standard, $49.4 million, up by $5.6 million; Phillips, $34 million, up by $3.6 million; Cities Service, $24.2 million, up by $7.4 million or 43 per cent; Sun Oil, $20 million, up by $5 million; Sinclair, $17 million, up by $7.6 million.

Most chemicals show second quarter gains this year. But the largest, Du Pont, shorn of its GM stock dividends now, trails by $2.39 a share in 1965 against $2.61 a year ago.

Ahead are: Union Carbide, with $57 million in this year's second quarter against $45 million in 1964; Monsanto, $38.8 million against $35.3 million; Dow, $30 million against $27.7 million; Allied $24 million against $23 million; Olin Mathieson, $16 million against $13.5 million.

Will the gains continue the rest of the year? Steel companies say even some slackening couldn't spoil 1965's final figures. Oil concerns see conditions still improving. Chemicals express confidence in the rest of the year.

Viet Nam holds uncertainties but few threats for most companies — these suppliers to civilian industry also service the military.

Germany's long-range World War I cannon "Big Bertha" was named for Mrs. Bertha Krupp of the Krupp industrial empire.

Struggle in Soviet Union Is Hinted

By Associated Press

Four Soviet leaders who seemed to drop from public view two months ago have suddenly reappeared all at once - and with a bang.

Their prominence in the Soviet press this week suggests that a nervous and indecisive collective leadership is involved in a behind-scenes struggle.

Critical and worrisome though the Southest Asia situation may be for the Kremlin leadership, the tugging and pulling now seem to center mostly about domestic affairs. Foreign policy provides overtones and adds complications, some in the form of increasingly insistent demands from the Soviet military.

The four leaders who have reappeared are Nikolai V. Podgorny and Pyotr Y. Shelest, both party Presidium members and both Ukrainians; Pyotr N. Demichev, a high-ranking party secretary and a bright young man of light industry; and Gennady I. Voronov, premier of the big Russian Republic.

All four came up under ousted Premier Nikita Khrushchev. They dropped from view early this summer at a time when it seemed the Ukrainian element favored by Khrushchev and others closely identified with him was being pushed aside.

Podgorny and Shelest were given significant prominence in the Communist party organ pravda and government paper Izvestia Sunday and Monday, along with the powerful A. N. Shelepin and A. P. Kirilenko, both members of the ruling party Presidium. The play given Podgorny overshadowed that given Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in commemorations of Soviet navy day.

Voronov and Demichev showed up again in the press as having appeared a day or two previously at public functions.

Shelepin, like Podgorny and Shelest, used the navy day occasion to voice concern for "the defense might of the father - land" in view of the situation in Viet Nam.

It is difficult to determine just who might be the targets of addresses like these, but the treatment of the occasion by Pravda and Izvestia suggests that Premier Kosygin, if anybody, was on the defensive.

More will be known about the internal situation toward the end of this year. The chances are now that the Communist party, despite a statute which would require a congress this year, is not going to hold one. The congresses, theoretically required every four years, are supposed to lay down guidelines.

If October passes without a party congress, it will be an indication that something is awry within the party leadership.

Basically, the conflict appears to be over internal rather than external affairs. Discussion of economic affairs in the press has provoked sharp debate, as if there were a contest going on between conservative Communists who resist change and the so-called liberals who stand for reform.

Uniforms Plentiful on TV Screens

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Network television's 1965-66 season will be a year when military uniforms are as plentiful on the small screen as beautiful blondes were last year. In fact, if you include forest rangers and sheriffs there will be at least 16 programs featuring assorted uniformed arms of the government.

Obviously, many of the new military shows were inspired months ago when programmers and advertising agencies were impressed by such programs as "Gomer Pyle — USMC," "McHale's Navy" and "Combat."

Come September, there will be more war-time comedies — "Mr. Roberts," "The Wackiest Ship in the Army," "Hogan's Heroes" who are prisoners of war — plus a dramatic offering "Convoy," one of NBC's two noncolor shows because it will use documentary film clips.

Now, however, with the war in Viet Nam growing bigger and hotter one wonders if by September, the fun-war of McHale's merry men and the others will seem quite so funny.

If Americans are in real battles far from home, realistic programs like "12 O'Clock High," "Combat," and "Convoy" could become grim reminders of war's danger and hardship instead of merely thrilling adventure stories.

The networks are now busily announcing their fall and winter special programs.

U.S. Goes on Losing Gold

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States goes on losing gold in spite of the much publicized balancing of its monetary give and take with other nations.

In late spring the United States managed to get more dollars back from abroad than it sent overseas in trade or aid or loans. But this surplus in its balance of payments after years f deficit didn't stop a further lrain in June and July of the U.S. Treasury's gold reserves.

Why are American gold stocks still falling?

Officials explain that the years of deficits in U.S. monetary dealings have left other nations with billions of dollars on hand. Some of it is still being used to buy gold from the U.S. Treasury to build up the reserves of foreign countries. Officials here hope this drain will peter out.

A more specific reason for the latest loss of gold, $75 million of it last week, is that the over-all payments surplus achieved in late spring doesn't apply to all nations — the surplus is just the averaging out of all transactions.

That is, one nation may have had to dip into some of its reserve dollars in its dealings with the United States because it bought more there than it got from American buying or lending there. This helped Washington in its effort to achieve a surplus.

At the same time, another nation could have gone on raking in more Yankee dollars than it had to shell out. The trend of dealings with that country would still have been in terms of deficit. In that country dollars would be piling up that could be used to buy gold.

Some European countries, notably France, have been running a surplus in their own balance of payments. They have plenty of dollars, new or old, to exchange for gold if they wish. France, for one, is on record as intending to turn any new surplus of dollars into gold.

The American balance of payments surplus was achieved largely by the voluntary actions of U.S. corporations and banks, under prodding from Washington, to cut back on spending and lending abroad.

But of late much of American investment overseas has been in countries that don't run a surplus in their own payments. They have been, and still are, short of dollars. Cutting back on private spending by U.S. business with them may make for an over-all surplus on the books, but it doesn't affect other nations with dollars to spare.

Still another reason that the gold drain can't be written off yet lies in American export-import prospects. Nations that have a balance of payments surplus of their own and are therefore not starved for U.S. dollars, have been giving Americans increased competition in world markets. Part of this has been due to the rising cost of production this year in American factories, and part has been due to the increasing efficiency of foreign producers as their prosperity has been translated into better equipment and newer products.

To get more dollars back from overseas, Americans must export more. Some countries that most want American goods are short of dollars. Other nations, notably in Western Europe, have dollars to spend but are threatening to raise higher barriers against American goods.

Gideon Street To Be Paved

GIDEON — The residents of Gideon Avenue are going to be pleased as the city council met on Monday evening at the City Hall and signed a contract with the Harrison Construction Company to hard surface Gideon Avenue beginning at First Steet and continuing to Fifth Street with a 30 foot roadbed of blacktop; also the street between First Street and Gideon Avenue known as Second Street, in front of City Hall.

The cost of this work will be borne by the property owners and the city. Some repair work will be made on the street known as Whiterow just north of First Street near the Richard Jones property.

Glint of Honest in Robards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is a glint of honesty in the acting of Jason Robards, and that quality has helped make him the top dramatic actor of the American stage.

His honesty is no artifice of acting skill. Offstage, the lanky, leather-faced Robards is as candid as a sandhog. He harbors no illusions and promotes none. The reason is that he has been around.

Jason Robards Sr. was a film star, and his son was subjected to the disillusioning sight of a star's descent from fame. Young Jason had no yen for acting, went to Hollywood High School at the same time as Lana Turner and shipped out in the Navy. He landed in New York after the war, tried his hand at soap operas, then climbed his way in the theater from "The Iceman Cometh" to "After the Fall."

He's here now for one of his rare movie roles, appearing with Henry Fonda and Joanne Woodward in "A Big Hand for the Little Lady." Why is he doing the film?

"Alimony," he said simply. "Same reason I just did a Chrysler Theater TV show. I came out here for a vacation with Betty (Lauren Bacall) and the kids, and I've worked every day."

He and his wife have a son, Sam, and she also has two children by Humphrey Bogart. Robards has children by a previous marriage, which explains the matter of the alimony.

The actor was not what you'd call bullish about his film career. I mentioned a few titles and drew these reactions: "By Love Possessed" — "That Turkey!" "Tender Is the Night" — "Another Turkey!" "Act One" — "A Disaster." "Long Day's Journey into Night" — "A Filmed Stage Play."

But he did take a kinder attitude toward his unreleased "A Thousand Clowns."

"I think we realized some things that were not in the play," he commented. "It was made with a great deal of care; we shot off and on for a year. I think it came off. At least some people seem to think so. Hell, I've never had so much attention from movie people. I'm getting calls from people like Billy Wilder, whom I've never heard from before."

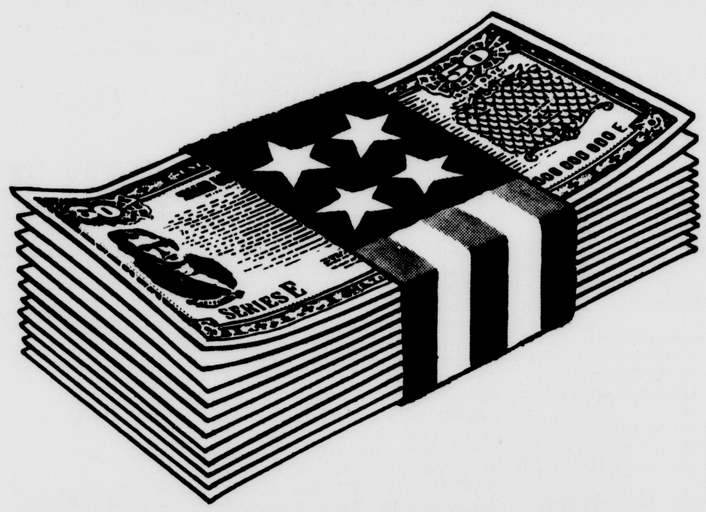

The calls are in vain, at least for the present. As soon as he finishes the film, he goes East to begin rehearsals for "The Devils," a European play which he said is the best script he has read in years.

But he gave an indication there might be more films in his future.

Incredible Week Of Capital Action

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — This was the week that was almost incredible for combined presidential action and congressional achievement, when judged against other weeks and even other years.

The President talked to the nation, upped the war in Viet Nam, conferred and consulted, created a crime commission and made a number of appointments of far-reaching importance.

Congress approved some measures which just a few years ago would have seemed impossible of passage.

Every day since the middle of last week President Johnson had been conferring with his advisers on how to cope with the advancing tide of guerrillas in Viet Nam.

In the midst of the conferences things popped and got bigger.

Monday Johnson appointed a 19-man commission to study crime in America and also named Rep. Oren Harris, Arkansas Democrat, to be a federal judge in the U.S. District Court in his home state.

The next day, Tuesday, Johnson signed a bill requiring cigarette packages to carry a health warning. And, to everyone's surprise, he selected Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze, who got his job from President John F. Kennedy in 1962 after he had been mayor of Cleveland five times, to be a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Ohio.

To his cabinet post Johnson named John W. Gardner, Republican, educator, writer and president of the Carnegie Corporation. And for Wednesday, Johnson called a news conference to talk about Viet Nam.

At the news conference he first disclosed that he was sending 50,000 troops to Viet Nam immediately to join the 75,000 already there and was increasing draft calls. Then he warned of more troups being sent and said the United States was determined to stop the guerrillas. At the same time he urged peace talks. This was all carefully prepared and delivered.

But so was what followed: The two big surprises of the day.

1. He was naming a friend of 30 years, attorney Abe Fortas, to the Supreme Court to succeed Arthur J. Goldberg who was plucked off the court by Johnson to succeed the late Adlai E. Stevenson as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

2. He had chosen John W. Chancellor, NBC's chief White House correspondent, to be director of the Voice of America.

Thursday, the President briefed governors on the Viet Nam situation.

Meanwhile, Congress was doing things which will remain memorable in American history and in other years would have seemed sensational not only for their nature but for being lumped all into one week.

Johnson has been so adroit at getting the men in the Capitol to approve what he wants that much of the history-making legislation going through Congress this year seems taken for granted.

This week Congress gave a final okay not only to changes and improvements in Social Security but for the first time created a program of medical care for people 65 or older.

This medical care program, opposed by various forces for two decades, is the most sweeping advance in the social welfare field since Social Security itself was established by Congress in 1935.

On top of this a House and Senate Conference Committee, set up to iron out differences between both bodies, approved a bill to protect Negroes' voting rights in the South, one of the most important civil rights measures in history.

Final, formal approval by both houses will be routine. In agreeing to the bill, the committee knocked out a controversial section banning poll taxes in state and local elections.

Congress also this week approved a four-year, $7.5-billion housing and urban development bill which includes rent subsidies for low-income families. It now goes to Johnson to be signed into law.

In addition, the Senate passed flood control bills, which the House is expected to approve, and the House knocked out a section of the federal labor law that permits states to ban union shops. This won't be final until the Senate acts. There may be a fight there.

MISSOURI HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT bridge crews have been mobilized in an emergency move to clear the fallen approach span on the Highway 67, Hendrickson Bridge, that collapsed Thursday near Poplar Bluff. The tangled superstructure was removed after workmen cut the steel uprights from the bridge deck structure. Two crawler tractors were used to topple the structure and drag it off from the fallen span. In photo at left, one of the tractors may be seen pawing the dust as the superstructure finally gave way after several attempts. A second tractor was operating out of the range of the camera at the right. In the photo at right, the bridge deck lies exposed with the collapsed superstructure hauled to the east side of the bridge site where it will eventually be cut up and removed. Workers began dismantling the bridge at once.

Sinews of U.S. Might Give Top Performance

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK — The sinews of American might — steel, nonferrous metals, oil, chemicals — are performing at top form. Major companies in these fields are reporting peak production and sales. And most of them are flexing their profits.

With few exceptions, the basic suppliers to American industry are reporting impressive gains in net income in the second quarter of 1965 compared with the like period of 1964. This maintains the spread that brightened the first three months of this year.

In the three months just ended steel companies translated record shipments into profit figures to delight stockholders. Among those reporting so far: U.S. Steel netted $81 million, up $20.3 million from the $60.7 million in the 1964 second quarter; Republic $24.4 million up from $17.7 million; National, $24.4 million from $20.6 million; Armco, $24 million from $18 million.

Producers of nonferrous metals and their products also have been prospering on increased demand, fed both by the business boom and war threats. Kennecott Copper reports second quarter profits of $27.9 million against $21.5 million a year ago; Magma Copper $4.6 million against $4.5 million.

Aluminum Co. of America compares a $22.4 million second quarter with a year ago figure of $16.9 million. Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical reports $11 million this year against $7.5 million last. And Reynolds Metals has a $15-million second quarter this year against a $9-million one in 1964.

Oil profits have been flowing freely, thanks to steadily growing civilian and military use. Ahead this April-June quarter over last year are: Gulf Oil, $104 million, up $13 million over the year ago figure; Socony Mobil, $78 million, up by $7.5 million; Shell, $60.4 million, up by $13.8 million; Indiana Standard, $49.4 million, up by $5.6 million; Phillips, $34 million, up by $3.6 million; Cities Service, $24.2 million, up by $7.4 million or 43 per cent; Sun Oil, $20 million, up by $5 million; Sinclair, $17 million, up by $7.6 million.

Most chemicals show second quarter gains this year. But the largest, Du Pont, shorn of its GM stock dividends now, trails by $2.39 a share in 1965 against $2.61 a year ago.

Ahead are: Union Carbide, with $57 million in this year's second quarter against $45 million in 1964; Monsanto, $38.8 million against $35.3 million; Dow, $30 million against $27.7 million; Allied $24 million against $23 million; Olin Mathieson, $16 million against $13.5 million.

Will the gains continue the rest of the year? Steel companies say even some slackening couldn't spoil 1965's final figures. Oil concerns see conditions still improving. Chemicals express confidence in the rest of the year.

Viet Nam holds uncertainties but few threats for most companies — these suppliers to civilian industry also service the military.

Struggle in Soviet Union Is Hinted

By Associated Press

Four Soviet leaders who seemed to drop from public view two months ago have suddenly reappeared all at once - and with a bang.

Their prominence in the Soviet press this week suggests that a nervous and indecisive collective leadership is involved in a behind-scenes struggle.

Critical and worrisome though the Southest Asia situation may be for the Kremlin leadership, the tugging and pulling now seem to center mostly about domestic affairs. Foreign policy provides overtones and adds complications, some in the form of increasingly insistent demands from the Soviet military.

The four leaders who have reappeared are Nikolai V. Podgorny and Pyotr Y. Shelest, both party Presidium members and both Ukrainians; Pyotr N. Demichev, a high-ranking party secretary and a bright young man of light industry; and Gennady I. Voronov, premier of the big Russian Republic.

All four came up under ousted Premier Nikita Khrushchev. They dropped from view early this summer at a time when it seemed the Ukrainian element favored by Khrushchev and others closely identified with him was being pushed aside.

Podgorny and Shelest were given significant prominence in the Communist party organ pravda and government paper Izvestia Sunday and Monday, along with the powerful A. N. Shelepin and A. P. Kirilenko, both members of the ruling party Presidium. The play given Podgorny overshadowed that given Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in commemorations of Soviet navy day.

Voronov and Demichev showed up again in the press as having appeared a day or two previously at public functions.

Shelepin, like Podgorny and Shelest, used the navy day occasion to voice concern for "the defense might of the father - land" in view of the situation in Viet Nam.

It is difficult to determine just who might be the targets of addresses like these, but the treatment of the occasion by Pravda and Izvestia suggests that Premier Kosygin, if anybody, was on the defensive.

More will be known about the internal situation toward the end of this year. The chances are now that the Communist party, despite a statute which would require a congress this year, is not going to hold one. The congresses, theoretically required every four years, are supposed to lay down guidelines.

If October passes without a party congress, it will be an indication that something is awry within the party leadership.

Basically, the conflict appears to be over internal rather than external affairs. Discussion of economic affairs in the press has provoked sharp debate, as if there were a contest going on between conservative Communists who resist change and the so-called liberals who stand for reform.

Uniforms Plentiful on TV Screens

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Network television's 1965-66 season will be a year when military uniforms are as plentiful on the small screen as beautiful blondes were last year. In fact, if you include forest rangers and sheriffs there will be at least 16 programs featuring assorted uniformed arms of the government.

Obviously, many of the new military shows were inspired months ago when programmers and advertising agencies were impressed by such programs as "Gomer Pyle — USMC," "McHale's Navy" and "Combat."

Come September, there will be more war-time comedies — "Mr. Roberts," "The Wackiest Ship in the Army," "Hogan's Heroes" who are prisoners of war — plus a dramatic offering "Convoy," one of NBC's two noncolor shows because it will use documentary film clips.

Now, however, with the war in Viet Nam growing bigger and hotter one wonders if by September, the fun-war of McHale's merry men and the others will seem quite so funny.

If Americans are in real battles far from home, realistic programs like "12 O'Clock High," "Combat," and "Convoy" could become grim reminders of war's danger and hardship instead of merely thrilling adventure stories.

The networks are now busily announcing their fall and winter special programs.

U.S. Goes on Losing Gold

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States goes on losing gold in spite of the much publicized balancing of its monetary give and take with other nations.

In late spring the United States managed to get more dollars back from abroad than it sent overseas in trade or aid or loans. But this surplus in its balance of payments after years f deficit didn't stop a further lrain in June and July of the U.S. Treasury's gold reserves.

Why are American gold stocks still falling?

Officials explain that the years of deficits in U.S. monetary dealings have left other nations with billions of dollars on hand. Some of it is still being used to buy gold from the U.S. Treasury to build up the reserves of foreign countries. Officials here hope this drain will peter out.

A more specific reason for the latest loss of gold, $75 million of it last week, is that the over-all payments surplus achieved in late spring doesn't apply to all nations — the surplus is just the averaging out of all transactions.

That is, one nation may have had to dip into some of its reserve dollars in its dealings with the United States because it bought more there than it got from American buying or lending there. This helped Washington in its effort to achieve a surplus.

At the same time, another nation could have gone on raking in more Yankee dollars than it had to shell out. The trend of dealings with that country would still have been in terms of deficit. In that country dollars would be piling up that could be used to buy gold.

Some European countries, notably France, have been running a surplus in their own balance of payments. They have plenty of dollars, new or old, to exchange for gold if they wish. France, for one, is on record as intending to turn any new surplus of dollars into gold.

The American balance of payments surplus was achieved largely by the voluntary actions of U.S. corporations and banks, under prodding from Washington, to cut back on spending and lending abroad.

But of late much of American investment overseas has been in countries that don't run a surplus in their own payments. They have been, and still are, short of dollars. Cutting back on private spending by U.S. business with them may make for an over-all surplus on the books, but it doesn't affect other nations with dollars to spare.

Still another reason that the gold drain can't be written off yet lies in American export-import prospects. Nations that have a balance of payments surplus of their own and are therefore not starved for U.S. dollars, have been giving Americans increased competition in world markets. Part of this has been due to the rising cost of production this year in American factories, and part has been due to the increasing efficiency of foreign producers as their prosperity has been translated into better equipment and newer products.

To get more dollars back from overseas, Americans must export more. Some countries that most want American goods are short of dollars. Other nations, notably in Western Europe, have dollars to spend but are threatening to raise higher barriers against American goods.

Glint of Honest in Robards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is a glint of honesty in the acting of Jason Robards, and that quality has helped make him the top dramatic actor of the American stage.

His honesty is no artifice of acting skill. Offstage, the lanky, leather-faced Robards is as candid as a sandhog. He harbors no illusions and promotes none. The reason is that he has been around.

Jason Robards Sr. was a film star, and his son was subjected to the disillusioning sight of a star's descent from fame. Young Jason had no yen for acting, went to Hollywood High School at the same time as Lana Turner and shipped out in the Navy. He landed in New York after the war, tried his hand at soap operas, then climbed his way in the theater from "The Iceman Cometh" to "After the Fall."

He's here now for one of his rare movie roles, appearing with Henry Fonda and Joanne Woodward in "A Big Hand for the Little Lady." Why is he doing the film?

"Alimony," he said simply. "Same reason I just did a Chrysler Theater TV show. I came out here for a vacation with Betty (Lauren Bacall) and the kids, and I've worked every day."

He and his wife have a son, Sam, and she also has two children by Humphrey Bogart. Robards has children by a previous marriage, which explains the matter of the alimony.

The actor was not what you'd call bullish about his film career. I mentioned a few titles and drew these reactions: "By Love Possessed" — "That Turkey!" "Tender Is the Night" — "Another Turkey!" "Act One" — "A Disaster." "Long Day's Journey into Night" — "A Filmed Stage Play."

But he did take a kinder attitude toward his unreleased "A Thousand Clowns."

"I think we realized some things that were not in the play," he commented. "It was made with a great deal of care; we shot off and on for a year. I think it came off. At least some people seem to think so. Hell, I've never had so much attention from movie people. I'm getting calls from people like Billy Wilder, whom I've never heard from before."

The calls are in vain, at least for the present. As soon as he finishes the film, he goes East to begin rehearsals for "The Devils," a European play which he said is the best script he has read in years.

But he gave an indication there might be more films in his future.

The millions of Americans who buy U. S. Savings Bonds know security is a two-way street.

You and your family are only as secure as the country you live in. When you start saving with U. S. Bonds you insure your own future and help keep your country strong at the same time.

Bonds give you a guaranteed rate of interest — 3¾% when held to maturity — so you don't have to worry about the ups and downs of market trends.

And Savings Bonds aren't subject to state or local income taxes, either. If you like, you can defer the federal income tax until you cash your Bonds.

When you buy your Bonds you can't help feeling a little proud. You're doing your part in strengthening the cause of freedom.

THE Outlook for Business for the last six months of 1965

AUSTIN T. CUSHMAN
Chairman of the Board
Sears, Roebuck and Co.

MERCHANDISING

Retail business thus far this year has been surging ahead of last year by a comfortable margin, nearly 8 per cent larger even than most retailers including myself had anticipated last fall for the first half of 1965, compared to last year, namely 4 to 5 per cent. Needless to say, I am delighted to have been proven wrong on the conservative side. Although I cherish my reputation as a business forecaster, I will cheerfully offer it up as a sacrifice if business would continue to turn out better than could be reasonably anticipated.

Let me call your attention, moreover, to the fact that the excellent sales performance in the first four months was achieved despite unusual roadblocks: Mother Nature, for one, was in a nasty mood, throwing in a prolonged winter season, floods, and tornadoes; the Bureau of Internal Revenue, for another, forced taxpayers to dig somewhat deeper than usual this spring in order to square up differences between the amounts withheld and amounts owed for taxes on incomes in the preceding year. But overriding these like a juggernaut was the fact that the flow of income to consumers has kept increasing, with more people at work, working longer hours each week on the average including considerable overtime, not to mention the continuing upward creep in wage rates. Put more money into peoples' hands and they will spend more. You can depend on American enterprise to do its part in whetting their desires for things and services to make life easier and more pleasant.

There is a general agreement, in which I share, that the forces working for growth are strong enough on balance to assure further expansion in general business activity through the rest of 1965. The admirable restraint exhibited by the business community in keeping prices down and controlling inventories, steel being an exception because of special circumstances, is paying off in the sense that the absence of excesses and distortions renders the outlook less uncertain.

While I am definitely optimistic about the chances for further gains in retail sales during the last half of 1965, I believe it would be realistic to expect some slowing up in the rate of advance, particularly in the next few months. Business was stimulated to an abnormal extent in the first quarter because of the obviously special conditions in the two major industries, autos and steel. Auto sales skyrocketed, partly because of demand deferred from late last year, and the fact that both industries have been operating at or near capacity in recent months has helped boost the demand for labor, and therefore the total paid out in wages and salaries. During the rest of 1965, some easing of activity can be expected in both of these industries, and while 1965 is very likely to set a new record for automobile sales, the sales pace set in the first half appears too high to be sustained in the second.

In considering retail prospects for the second half, one should bear in mind that the combination of the proposed Federal excise tax cuts July 1, 1965 and increases in security benefit payments this fall will provide a good underpinning to consumer spending, in the first instance through price reductions on many consumer durable goods items, including major appliances and TV sets, in the second through increased incomes. The impact, however, is not likely to be as dramatic as that associated with the income tax cut last year.

In terms of percentages of increase over the last half of 1964, my guess is that retail sales as a whole will record a 4 1/2 per cent gain in the last six months of 1965. I would expect a somewhat better performance in sales in the area of direct interest to me, namely, general merchandise, of about 6 per cent.

More Road Money Needed

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (AP) — M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the State Highway Department, said Wednesday Missouri motorists should put up more money for better roads.

He didn't come out flat-footed for an increase but said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the West Plains Chamber of Commerce:

"It simply is inconceivable to me —as I am sure it would be to anyone giving honest thought to the matter —how Mr. John Q. Public can in good conscience cheerfully shell out $3,000 or $4,000 to buy a new car and then recoil in horror when mention is made of him paying a few dollars more a year in taxes to build a modern state highway system."

In recent speeches Snider has emphasized what he called the need for more highway funds but he has been careful to say he was not asking for an increase in motor fuel taxes.

In his speech Wednesday he said "I believe there some day must be a recognition by Mr. Public that drastic--and I do mean drastic --increases in roadbuilding funds will have to be forthcoming so there can be built a more adequate system of highways. This recognition simply must come in behalf of the safety, economic progress and the general well being of the people.

"No one has to take my word for it that Missouri literally has thousands of miles of state highways and hundreds of bridges which are inadequate."

When I Was A Boy

B. F. "Pappy" Blanton

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes. (Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

August 22, 1919

When I was a boy of 15 at Fayette occurred a murder that excited the whole state on account of the prominence of the parties. The murderer was a man named Lucky, father of Rev. W. F. Lucky, President of Central College. Old Lucky was a tough character, drank and gambled. One night as a man named Safferens was passing a narrow alley on the West side of the court house square, Old man Lucky, who was hid in the alley, reached out and killed him as dead as Julius Caesar. I have forgotten whether Lucky shot him or slugged him. Their trouble grew out of gambling, I believe and it was thought by one and all that Lucky would hang, but by some hook or crook the old Reprobate was acquitted and left the state. The trial ruined his son, financially.

When I was a boy children in the country did not have pretty sleds, nice little red wagons or roller skates, nor nice shoes and silk stockings as they do now, but instead they wore coarse, home-made, round toed shoes and coarse wollen socks and stockings which were made at home. If the boys wanted to coast down a hill when the snow was on the ground all they had to do was to get a wide piece of plank or a wide board, fasten a cleat across one end, get on and start. After the hill was made slick after a few trips the boys went down the hill as fast as the boys do now with their pretty new sleds, and all had just as good a time and as much fun as the boys of today. You see we thought nothing could be better, and contentment is great riches at last.

When I was a boy the cattle and hogs were all scrubs in my neighborhood, and it was many years before a few short horn cattle were brought out from Kentucky, and still many more years before the Berkshire hogs made their appearance. Now you cannot find a single scrub cow or hog anywhere in Missouri unless it is in the Ozark country. Away back there bulls ran loose in the country and it was the delight of a boy to get two together, for they put up a fight that would make the Mexican bull fight look like thirty cents. They would fight each other to a finish and after a while the vanquished bull would turn tail and run. I have rarely seen anything more thrilling since then.

When I was a boy there lived in our neighborhood a "Faith Doctor," named Stanley, whom people, many of them, thought could almost raise the dead. People came long distances to consult him and many thought they were greatly benefited. He never charged anything for what he did, but would take a free will gift. There is no doubt but he benefited many who only had imaginary ills, just like the Christian Science cures. Thousands of people become chronic complainers when there is really nothing the matter, only imagination. So old man Stanley continued popular with that class, but he could no more cure a burn, toothache or a broken bone or rheumatism, than a rabbit.

When I was a boy of thirteen and a half years I was sent to Glasgow to learn the printing business, as my grandfather and my mother both thought I might make my mark in the world, and did, but not the mark they hoped for. I began in the Banner office, edited by a down East Yankee named Twombly, who while editing a democratic paper was an awful hater of an abolitionist and an ardent advocate of slavery. He afterwards went to Kansas and joined Jim Lane's Kansas Red Legs and was the meanest abolitionist in the state. He, before leaving Glasgow, sold the paper to R. C. Hancock, who moved the paper to Fayette and that paper is now the Fayette Advertiser, a fine newspaper, one of the best in the state and always has been.

When I was a boy learning my trade at Glasgow, I had a fine time, I thought. At that time there were several wholesale business concerns in that town, among them a wholesale whiskey house owned by a man named James S. Thompson, I think. At that time Glasgow was one of the most prosperous towns on the Missouri river and did much business, both wholesale and retail, but when the Hannibal and St. Joe Railway was built Glasgow lost all her trade from North Missouri and part of Iowa. At that time I have seen steamboats loaded with bales of hemp and tobacco, but now there is neither shipped from that port. There were also at that time three large tobacco factories, and a "rope walk," something unknown now, where a large amount of hemp rope was made every year. All these things have now passed away never to return.

Radiation's Effects Are Debatable

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Every year, on Aug. 6, the city of Hiroshima solemnly places a list of new names under the cenotaph which honors thousands who died from effects of the atom bomb.

Temple bells toll, doves wheel in the air and citizens of the first city to feel the lash of an atomic weapon bow their heads in prayer.

Most of the new victims are popularly described as struck down by "atomic disease," a term used for leukemia or some other form of cancer.

But the truth is that despite research carried out by Japanese, American and European doctors and scientists on the effects of radiation from the Hiroshima bomb, no one can say positively that it causes or accelerates disease in humans.

Statistically, doctors and scientists have found that the incidence of some diseases like cancer is much higher in persons exposed to the bomb. Despite this it has so far been impossible to say beyond doubt whether radiation caused, encouraged or had nothing to do with these diseases.

As a more positive fact, American researchers in the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission say they have found that no genetic damage from radiation has been passed on to children of survivors.

This conclusion was reached by Dr. James Neel of the University of Michigan. He examined all children born to bomb victims in Hiroshima and the second atom-bombed city, Nagasaki, in one year, from 1947 to 1948. Using genetic markers, he found no disturbances.

"That is something we can be very cheery about. We like to think of it as one of the best things we have done," said Dr. Kenneth B. G. Johnson of Yale University, now in residence at the commission.

The commission has carried out many studies related to the bomb since 1947. It is jointly supported by the U.S. National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council and the Japanese National Institute of Health, a government agency. It has 850 Japanese and 50 American staff members.

Headed by Dr. George Darling of Yale, the commission is making an exhaustive survey of 100,000 persons, half of them exposed, the other half not exposed to the bomb. Matched by sex and age, they are periodically checked for survival experiences and causes of death.

It is also studying a sampling of 20,000 exposed and nonexposed children and adults to determine whether there has been any change in the occurrence of disease in relation to the amount of exposure. They get detailed physicial and laboratory examinations every two years.

Outdoor Cookery

When you're cooking on an outdoor grill, how do you figure cooking time? If the temperature is kept at moderate, the times will approximate those used indoors with your range.

Outdoor grill thermometers will give accurate temperatures to guide you while cooking proceeds, but if you don't have one, then make certain the coals burn down from their white-hot stage to that in which they're covered with a fine gray ash. This provides a moderate temperature for grilling the food instead of charring it unpalatably.

Curried Rice - Dried Beef

Add curry powder to boiling water (allowing 1½ teaspoons for each quart of water) when cooking rice. This makes a wonderfully tasty "bed" of rice on which to serve creamed dried beef for luncheon or supper.

If desired, the curried rice can be placed in a ring mold, then unmolded after forming, to be served with the creamed dried beef in the center, garnished with spiced apricots rolled in coconut.

THE Outlook for Business for the last six months of 1965

AUSTIN T. CUSHMAN
Chairman of the Board
MERCHANDISING

Retail business thus far this year has been surging ahead of last year by a comfortable margin, nearly 8 per cent larger even than most retailers including myself had anticipated last fall for the first half of 1965, compared to last year, namely 4 to 5 per cent. Needless to say, I am delighted to have been proven wrong on the conservative side. Although I cherish my reputation as a business forecaster, I will cheerfully offer it up as a sacrifice if business would continue to turn out better than could be reasonably anticipated.

Let me call your attention, moreover, to the fact that the excellent sales performance in the first four months was achieved despite unusual roadblocks: Mother Nature, for one, was in a nasty mood, throwing in a prolonged winter season, floods, and tornadoes; the Bureau of Internal Revenue, for another, forced taxpayers to dig somewhat deeper than usual this spring in order to square up differences between the amounts withheld and amounts owed for taxes on incomes in the preceding year. But overriding these like a juggernaut was the fact that the flow of income to consumers has kept increasing, with more people at work, working longer hours each week on the average including considerable overtime, not to mention the continuing upward creep in wage rates. Put more money into peoples' hands and they will spend more. You can depend on American enterprise to do its part in whetting their desires for things and services to make life easier and more pleasant.

There is a general agreement, in which I share, that the forces working for growth are strong enough on balance to assure further expansion in general business activity through the rest of 1965. The admirable restraint exhibited by the business community in keeping prices down and controlling inventories, steel being an exception because of special circumstances, is paying off in the sense that the absence of excesses and distortions renders the outlook less uncertain.

While I am definitely optimistic about the chances for further gains in retail sales during the last half of 1965, I believe it would be realistic to expect some slowing up in the rate of advance, particularly in the next few months. Business was stimulated to an abnormal extent in the first quarter because of the obviously special conditions in the two major industries, autos and steel. Auto sales skyrocketed, partly because of demand deferred from late last year, and the fact that both industries have been operating at or near capacity in recent months has helped boost the demand for labor, and therefore the total paid out in wages and salaries. During the rest of 1965, some easing of activity can be expected in both of these industries, and while 1965 is very likely to set a new record for automobile sales, the sales pace set in the first half appears too high to be sustained in the second.

In considering retail prospects for the second half, one should bear in mind that the combination of the proposed Federal excise tax cuts July 1, 1965 and increases in security benefit payments this fall will provide a good underpinning to consumer spending, in the first instance through price reductions on many consumer durable goods items, including major appliances and TV sets, in the second through increased incomes. The impact, however, is not likely to be as dramatic as that associated with the income tax cut last year.

In terms of percentages of increase over the last half of 1964, my guess is that retail sales as a whole will record a 4 1/2 per cent gain in the last six months of 1965. I would expect a somewhat better performance in sales in the area of direct interest to me, namely, general merchandise, of about 6 per cent.

More Road Money Needed

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (AP) — M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the State Highway Department, said Wednesday Missouri motorists should put up more money for better roads.

He didn't come out flat-footed for an increase but said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the West Plains Chamber of Commerce:

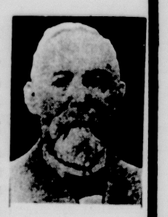

"It simply is inconceivable to me —as I am sure it would be to anyone giving honest thought to the matter —how Mr. John Q. Public can in good conscience cheerfully shell out $3,000 or $4,000 to buy a new car and then recoil in horror when mention is made of him paying a few dollars more a year in taxes to build a modern state highway system."

In recent speeches Snider has emphasized what he called the need for more highway funds but he has been careful to say he was not asking for an increase in motor fuel taxes.

In his speech Wednesday he said "I believe there some day must be a recognition by Mr. Public that drastic--and I do mean drastic --increases in roadbuilding funds will have to be forthcoming so there can be built a more adequate system of highways. This recognition simply must come in behalf of the safety, economic progress and the general well being of the people.

"No one has to take my word for it that Missouri literally has thousands of miles of state highways and hundreds of bridges which are inadequate."

When I Was A Boy

B. F. "Pappy" Blanton

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes. (Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

August 22, 1919

When I was a boy of 15 at Fayette occurred a murder that excited the whole state on account of the prominence of the parties. The murderer was a man named Lucky, father of Rev. W. F. Lucky, President of Central College. Old Lucky was a tough character, drank and gambled. One night as a man named Safferens was passing a narrow alley on the West side of the court house square, Old man Lucky, who was hid in the alley, reached out and killed him as dead as Julius Caesar. I have forgotten whether Lucky shot him or slugged him. Their trouble grew out of gambling, I believe and it was thought by one and all that Lucky would hang, but by some hook or crook the old Reprobate was acquitted and left the state. The trial ruined his son, financially.

When I was a boy children in the country did not have pretty sleds, nice little red wagons or roller skates, nor nice shoes and silk stockings as they do now, but instead they wore coarse, home-made, round toed shoes and coarse wollen socks and stockings which were made at home. If the boys wanted to coast down a hill when the snow was on the ground all they had to do was to get a wide piece of plank or a wide board, fasten a cleat across one end, get on and start. After the hill was made slick after a few trips the boys went down the hill as fast as the boys do now with their pretty new sleds, and all had just as good a time and as much fun as the boys of today. You see we thought nothing could be better, and contentment is great riches at last.

When I was a boy the cattle and hogs were all scrubs in my neighborhood, and it was many years before a few short horn cattle were brought out from Kentucky, and still many more years before the Berkshire hogs made their appearance. Now you cannot find a single scrub cow or hog anywhere in Missouri unless it is in the Ozark country. Away back there bulls ran loose in the country and it was the delight of a boy to get two together, for they put up a fight that would make the Mexican bull fight look like thirty cents. They would fight each other to a finish and after a while the vanquished bull would turn tail and run. I have rarely seen anything more thrilling since then.

When I was a boy there lived in our neighborhood a "Faith Doctor," named Stanley, whom people, many of them, thought could almost raise the dead. People came long distances to consult him and many thought they were greatly benefited. He never charged anything for what he did, but would take a free will gift. There is no doubt but he benefited many who only had imaginary ills, just like the Christian Science cures. Thousands of people become chronic complainers when there is really nothing the matter, only imagination. So old man Stanley continued popular with that class, but he could no more cure a burn, toothache or a broken bone or rheumatism, than a rabbit.

When I was a boy of thirteen and a half years I was sent to Glasgow to learn the printing business, as my grandfather and my mother both thought I might make my mark in the world, and did, but not the mark they hoped for. I began in the Banner office, edited by a down East Yankee named Twombly, who while editing a democratic paper was an awful hater of an abolitionist and an ardent advocate of slavery. He afterwards went to Kansas and joined Jim Lane's Kansas Red Legs and was the meanest abolitionist in the state. He, before leaving Glasgow, sold the paper to R. C. Hancock, who moved the paper to Fayette and that paper is now the Fayette Advertiser, a fine newspaper, one of the best in the state and always has been.

When I was a boy learning my trade at Glasgow, I had a fine time, I thought. At that time there were several wholesale business concerns in that town, among them a wholesale whiskey house owned by a man named James S. Thompson, I think. At that time Glasgow was one of the most prosperous towns on the Missouri river and did much business, both wholesale and retail, but when the Hannibal and St. Joe Railway was built Glasgow lost all her trade from North Missouri and part of Iowa. At that time I have seen steamboats loaded with bales of hemp and tobacco, but now there is neither shipped from that port. There were also at that time three large tobacco factories, and a "rope walk," something unknown now, where a large amount of hemp rope was made every year. All these things have now passed away never to return.

Radiation's Effects Are Debatable

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Every year, on Aug. 6, the city of Hiroshima solemnly places a list of new names under the cenotaph which honors thousands who died from effects of the atom bomb.

Temple bells toll, doves wheel in the air and citizens of the first city to feel the lash of an atomic weapon bow their heads in prayer.

Most of the new victims are popularly described as struck down by "atomic disease," a term used for leukemia or some other form of cancer.

But the truth is that despite research carried out by Japanese, American and European doctors and scientists on the effects of radiation from the Hiroshima bomb, no one can say positively that it causes or accelerates disease in humans.

Statistically, doctors and scientists have found that the incidence of some diseases like cancer is much higher in persons exposed to the bomb. Despite this it has so far been impossible to say beyond doubt whether radiation caused, encouraged or had nothing to do with these diseases.

As a more positive fact, American researchers in the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission say they have found that no genetic damage from radiation has been passed on to children of survivors.

This conclusion was reached by Dr. James Neel of the University of Michigan. He examined all children born to bomb victims in Hiroshima and the second atom-bombed city, Nagasaki, in one year, from 1947 to 1948. Using genetic markers, he found no disturbances.

"That is something we can be very cheery about. We like to think of it as one of the best things we have done," said Dr. Kenneth B. G. Johnson of Yale University, now in residence at the commission.

The commission has carried out many studies related to the bomb since 1947. It is jointly supported by the U.S. National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council and the Japanese National Institute of Health, a government agency. It has 850 Japanese and 50 American staff members.

Headed by Dr. George Darling of Yale, the commission is making an exhaustive survey of 100,000 persons, half of them exposed, the other half not exposed to the bomb. Matched by sex and age, they are periodically checked for survival experiences and causes of death.

It is also studying a sampling of 20,000 exposed and nonexposed children and adults to determine whether there has been any change in the occurrence of disease in relation to the amount of exposure. They get detailed physicial and laboratory examinations every two years.

Curried Rice - Dried Beef

Add curry powder to boiling water (allowing 1½ teaspoons for each quart of water) when cooking rice. This makes a wonderfully tasty "bed" of rice on which to serve creamed dried beef for luncheon or supper.

If desired, the curried rice can be placed in a ring mold, then unmolded after forming, to be served with the creamed dried beef in the center, garnished with spiced apricots rolled in coconut.

Russia Underplays Viet Nam War

Moscow is underplaying aspects of the Viet Nam war which might directly concern the Soviet Union, and Washington appears to be bending over backward to avoid provoking the Kremlin.

The appearance of delicate treatment of the situation in both capitals testifies to the depth of the Viet Nam crisis and the reluctance of the two great nuclear powers to generate dangerous tension between them.

Soviet skittishness has become obvious. The Soviet press paid scant attention to the dramatic news that U.S. planes attacked antiaircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam, installations presumably placed there by the Russians and possibly manned by their technicians.

President Johnson said Wednesday he knows of nothing the U.S. government has in mind which might excite Soviet distrust or provoke the Soviet Union. The whole tenor of his news conference was distinctly low key, and the picture he displayed of U.S. policy in Viet Nam was one of carefully measured steps.

If Russians were manning the missiles in North Viet Nam, the Kremlin may have decided that they were expendable chips in this poker game. It is possible, of course, that no Russians were on the scene at all.

In any event, the Kremlin leadership shows no enthusiasm for heating up the atmosphere, despite strident scolding from the Red Chinese.

"What the Russians call support for Viet Nam and aid to Viet Nam are just for deceiving others," complained a Peking paper this week. "Their real aim is to bring the Viet Nam question into the orbit of Soviet - U.S. cooperation for world domination and stamp out the Vietnamese people's struggle against U.S. aggression."

The evidence seems to indicate the Soviet Union and most of its European allies would like to see some approach to the conference table worked out. The problem is how to overleap the hurdle of Chinese obstruction.

Didn't Get Tough Soon Enough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stepped-up war in Viet Nam ordered by President Johnson might never have been necessary if the United States had been tougher sooner.

Johnson's actions are a major effort to save Viet Nam from a Communist take-over although the United States has been pumping money, arms and, to a limited degree, men into that country for more than 10 years. The American military manpower buildup began five years ago.

For eight of those years the United States, under Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy, backed a dictator who finally was ousted in a coup and killed.

This was President Ngo Dinh Diem, assassinated in 1963. Because he was a strong anti-Communist, the two American administrations apparently felt they had to put up with him or see chaos and communism take over the country.

The United States has had two principal purposes in helping South Viet Nam — one humane, the other selfish.

This country wanted to help the Vietnamese masses out of their ancient backwardness but, for its own sake, the United States wanted to stop the spread of communism by preventing a Red take-over in Viet Nam. This has been American policy around the world since 1948.

The Vietnamese, impoverished, largely illiterate, and with a life expectancy of 32 years, had no understanding of democracy, communism, capitalism, or socialism.

They wanted as little government of any kind as possible.

What they wanted was a better, longer and richer life for themselves and their children. Like anyone else, they could be expected to turn to the side that helped them the most or promised the most.

When Diem, despite all the American help, failed to provide this incentive, the United States could have taken one of these three courses:

Try to compel him to end the tyranny, put in reforms and provide hope; get out if he didn't on the grounds that without change the cause was helpless; or sweat it out with him in the hope things might turn out right.

The United States chose the third course. The failure of the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations to make the tough decisions just left the country wide open to discontent and growing guerrilla war.

Kennedy was aware that changes were needed. He sent Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor to Viet Nam. When Taylor came back the Kennedy administration announced that Diem had agreed to put in wide reforms. That was about the last ever heard of that.

In short, the United States, despite all its help, had to watch Viet Nam dwindle into disaster as the guerrillas took over more and more of the country.

Now the United States feels it is necessary to put more men and effort into the war to save South Viet Nam. This is being tough. But if the United States had been half so tough long ago what has happened now might have been averted.

$35,000 Suit In Dunklin

KENNETT - A three-count petition, in which the plaintiffs seek damages amounting to $35,000, was filed last week in the office of Dunklin County Circuit Brydon Ross.

Earl Harlan McFarland of Campbell is the defendant in the suit filed by Nora Pauline Johnson and Earl Johnson.

The plaintiffs state in the petition that all claims are based on an automobile accident which occurred in Butler County, July 10, on Highway 53 near Route N.

In the first count the plaintiff is Nora Pauline Johnson, who contends that the defendant was negligent and careless in operating his car which ran into the rear of the Johnson vehicle with great force, injuring Mrs. Johnson and damaging the automobile, a 1964 Chevrolet Impala.

The plaintiff claims multiple personal injuries, great expense in the way of hospital, doctor and medicine bills and the loss of her income which had amounted to $100 a week before the accident. She seeks $25,000 from the defendant.

Earl Johnson filed the second count and claims he has been deprived of the assistance and companionship of his wife and has been obligated to expend great sums of money for the medical care of his wife. He asks judgment of $7,500 on this count.

Both plaintiffs seek $3,000 in the third count, for damages to their vehicle.

Move into New Court House

CAIRO - The new Alexander County courthouse officially became the property of the county building commission Thursday, when architects and contractors surrendered the keys to the commission.

The court house was turned over to the commission after inspection of the building by the commission members, contractors, and architects.

County officers have started their move into the new building. Moving is expected to be completed by the end of this week.

Alexander County offices have been located in the city-county building while the new courthouse was being constructed.

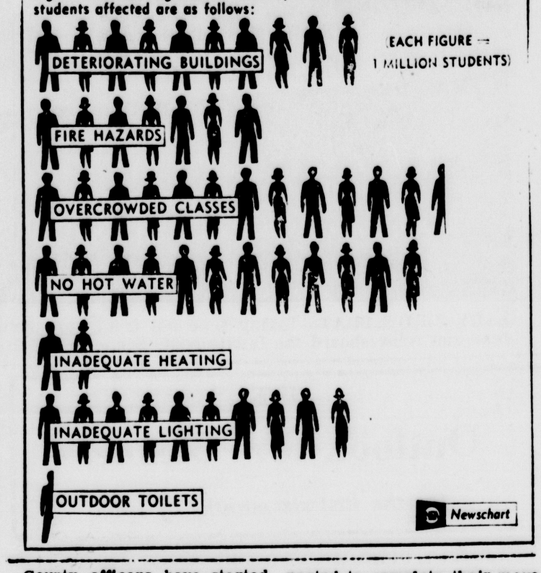

Official dedication of the courthouse is scheduled for Sept. 4, but all county business will be conducted from the new courthouse within the next week.

Among the first offices expected to complete their move into the courthouse are that of the sheriff, state's attorney, and circuit court judge. Sheriff Earl A. Shepherd, Jr., said his offices would be moved in by Monday.

The beauty contest season is reaching its climax and promoters report that everything is in good shape.

Russia Underplays Viet Nam War

Moscow is underplaying aspects of the Viet Nam war which might directly concern the Soviet Union, and Washington appears to be bending over backward to avoid provoking the Kremlin.

The appearance of delicate treatment of the situation in both capitals testifies to the depth of the Viet Nam crisis and the reluctance of the two great nuclear powers to generate dangerous tension between them.

Soviet skittishness has become obvious. The Soviet press paid scant attention to the dramatic news that U.S. planes attacked antiaircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam, installations presumably placed there by the Russians and possibly manned by their technicians.

President Johnson said Wednesday he knows of nothing the U.S. government has in mind which might excite Soviet distrust or provoke the Soviet Union. The whole tenor of his news conference was distinctly low key, and the picture he displayed of U.S. policy in Viet Nam was one of carefully measured steps.

If Russians were manning the missiles in North Viet Nam, the Kremlin may have decided that they were expendable chips in this poker game. It is possible, of course, that no Russians were on the scene at all.

In any event, the Kremlin leadership shows no enthusiasm for heating up the atmosphere, despite strident scolding from the Red Chinese.

"What the Russians call support for Viet Nam and aid to Viet Nam are just for deceiving others," complained a Peking paper this week. "Their real aim is to bring the Viet Nam question into the orbit of Soviet - U.S. cooperation for world domination and stamp out the Vietnamese people's struggle against U.S. aggression."

The evidence seems to indicate the Soviet Union and most of its European allies would like to see some approach to the conference table worked out. The problem is how to overleap the hurdle of Chinese obstruction.

Didn't Get Tough Soon Enough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stepped-up war in Viet Nam ordered by President Johnson might never have been necessary if the United States had been tougher sooner.

Johnson's actions are a major effort to save Viet Nam from a Communist take-over although the United States has been pumping money, arms and, to a limited degree, men into that country for more than 10 years. The American military manpower buildup began five years ago.

For eight of those years the United States, under Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy, backed a dictator who finally was ousted in a coup and killed.

This was President Ngo Dinh Diem, assassinated in 1963. Because he was a strong anti-Communist, the two American administrations apparently felt they had to put up with him or see chaos and communism take over the country.

The United States has had two principal purposes in helping South Viet Nam — one humane, the other selfish.

This country wanted to help the Vietnamese masses out of their ancient backwardness but, for its own sake, the United States wanted to stop the spread of communism by preventing a Red take-over in Viet Nam. This has been American policy around the world since 1948.

The Vietnamese, impoverished, largely illiterate, and with a life expectancy of 32 years, had no understanding of democracy, communism, capitalism, or socialism.

They wanted as little government of any kind as possible.

What they wanted was a better, longer and richer life for themselves and their children. Like anyone else, they could be expected to turn to the side that helped them the most or promised the most.

When Diem, despite all the American help, failed to provide this incentive, the United States could have taken one of these three courses:

Try to compel him to end the tyranny, put in reforms and provide hope; get out if he didn't on the grounds that without change the cause was helpless; or sweat it out with him in the hope things might turn out right.

The United States chose the third course. The failure of the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations to make the tough decisions just left the country wide open to discontent and growing guerrilla war.

Kennedy was aware that changes were needed. He sent Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor to Viet Nam. When Taylor came back the Kennedy administration announced that Diem had agreed to put in wide reforms. That was about the last ever heard of that.

In short, the United States, despite all its help, had to watch Viet Nam dwindle into disaster as the guerrillas took over more and more of the country.

Now the United States feels it is necessary to put more men and effort into the war to save South Viet Nam. This is being tough. But if the United States had been half so tough long ago what has happened now might have been averted.

$35,000 Suit In Dunklin

KENNETT - A three-count petition, in which the plaintiffs seek damages amounting to $35,000, was filed last week in the office of Dunklin County Circuit Brydon Ross.

Earl Harlan McFarland of Campbell is the defendant in the suit filed by Nora Pauline Johnson and Earl Johnson.

The plaintiffs state in the petition that all claims are based on an automobile accident which occurred in Butler County, July 10, on Highway 53 near Route N.

In the first count the plaintiff is Nora Pauline Johnson, who contends that the defendant was negligent and careless in operating his car which ran into the rear of the Johnson vehicle with great force, injuring Mrs. Johnson and damaging the automobile, a 1964 Chevrolet Impala.

The plaintiff claims multiple personal injuries, great expense in the way of hospital, doctor and medicine bills and the loss of her income which had amounted to $100 a week before the accident. She seeks $25,000 from the defendant.

Earl Johnson filed the second count and claims he has been deprived of the assistance and companionship of his wife and has been obligated to expend great sums of money for the medical care of his wife. He asks judgment of $7,500 on this count.

Both plaintiffs seek $3,000 in the third count, for damages to their vehicle.

A number of trophies and prizes will again be offered this year to visiting pilots and passengers and special efforts are being made to secure modern and antique planes for display at the airport.

The local event will again be held at the Kennett Municipal Airport.

Efforts are also being made to secure a gyrocopter, and military planes for display.

The court house was turned over to the commission after inspection of the building by the commission members, contractors, and architects.

County officers have started their move into the new building. Moving is expected to be completed by the end of this week.

Alexander County offices have been located in the city-county building while the new courthouse was being constructed.

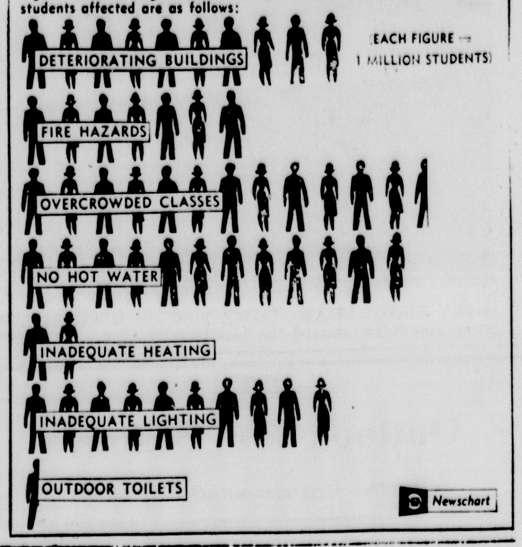

Official dedication of the courthouse is scheduled for Sept. 4, but all county business will be conducted from the new courthouse within the next week.

Among the first offices expected to complete their move into the courthouse are that of the sheriff, state's attorney, and circuit court judge. Sheriff Earl A. Shepherd, Jr., said his offices would be moved in by Monday.

The beauty contest season is reaching its climax and promoters report that everything is in good shape.

A Note and Flash In Early August

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — So long as man is alive on earth he can never forget two things that came, years apart, in the first week in August: A note and a flash.

Ever since he has known that if he is stupid enough there will be another flash some time, not to see by but to die by.

It was 26 years ago today — Aug. 2, 1939 — that the world's most famous scientist, Albert Einstein, wrote a note to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, saying: It might be possible to make an atomic bomb.

Then the kindly Einstein, a pacifist, added a frightening note. He said the Nazis were already at work on the project. Roosevelt's response: "This requires action." It took six years to make the bomb.

Twenty years ago this week — Aug. 6, 1945 — a B29 superfortress flew over the Japanese city of Hiroshima at 9:15 a.m. and dropped a bomb called "The Lean Boy." The city went up in flash and smoke.

President Harry S. Truman got the word that day coming back from the Potsdam Conference on the heavy cruiser Augusta and he told a group of sailors around him: "This is the greatest thing in history."

The Japanese bumbled about surrender and on Aug. 9, 1945, another bomb, this one called "The Fat Boy," was dropped on Nagasaki. The world has never been the same since.

Nearly 80,000 people were killed in Hiroshima, 35,000 in Nagasaki. Over 70,000 were injured in both cities, thousands were doomed to lingering, agonizing illness. Other thousands were missing.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, said "this incredible, destructive instrument remains a temptation for posterity." And it has been ever since.

The United Nations, quickly realizing what the world was up against, in January 1946 created its Atomic Energy Commission to find some way to control what had been let loose.

Six months later, on June 14, 1946, Bernard M. Baruch, U.S. representative to the commission, told it: "My fellow citizens of the world. We are here to make a choice between the quick and the dead. If we fail, then we have damned every man to be a slave of fear."

The commission failed. The United States proposed an international commission to control atomic energy with unrestricted right to inspect all nations to prevent cheating. The Russians wanted an international agreement to abandon atomic warfare, but without inspection. The race was on.

On Sept. 23, 1949, Truman announced Russia's first atomic blast. To keep ahead, the United States went farther and on Nov. 1, 1952, exploded its first hydrogen device. Russia caught up with this on Aug. 21, 1953.

Both sides were busy, busy to find a better and faster way to deliver the bomb. They developed intercontinental ballistic missiles, of which the United States has more than 750. While Russia may have fewer, it has enough to lay the United States in ruins if they reached their targets.

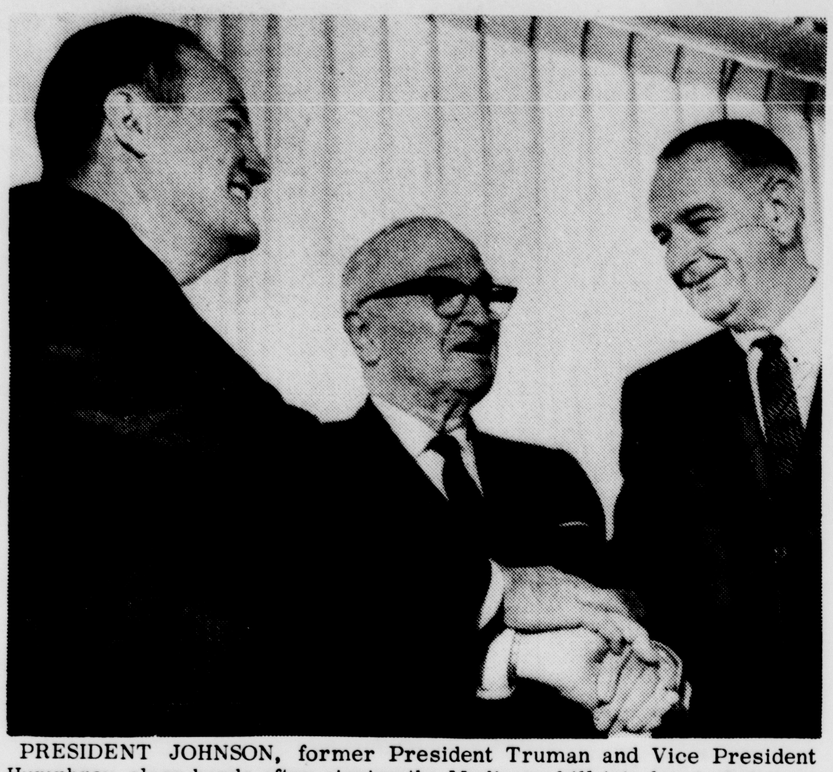

Both went farther and endangered the world by testing in the atmosphere. They finally agreed to cut that out in 1963 and just test underground. Both have devices to be sure there's no cheating on that.

But the worst nightmare is the spread of nuclear weapons; other nations can develop them and some already have. Five big powers are in the nuclear club now: United States, Russia, Britain, France, Red China.

Others, like India, are unlikely to sit by indefinitely without the bombs for this would leave them at the mercy of their neighbors. Unless there's a stop to the spread, the world may become a furnace.

For years there have been disarmament conferences. Another one began last week with the United States and Russia the main characters. But no one really expects any progress or agreement.

Today, 26 years after Einstein wrote his note, the world doesn't know whether it's going to wind up looking like roast chicken.

Severe Colds Blight to Cary Grant Honeymoon

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Honeymooning Cary Grant and his 27-year-old bride are suffering from bad colds, the film star's chauffeur said today.

Grant and his wife spent Sunday alone in their hotel suite.

The staff of Bristol's Royal Hotel told callers Grant had left at 6 a.m. Sunday for the country. They said they weren't sure when he would return.

But all the time, Grant, 61, and his bride, blonde American actress Dyan Cannon, remained in their third-floor suite. A hotel porter acted as a guard outside the suite.

Grant revealed Saturday that they were married quietly in Las Vegas, Nev., last month with only a few close friends attending. The bride's father said the wedding took place July 22.

The actor told an interviewer: "We kept it secret because marriage is a very private affair and I prefer to do things quietly, without fanfare or intrusion."

Grant kept things that way Sunday. He and his bride had no visitors, accepted no messages or phone calls and took their meals in their suite.

The couple went Saturday to a nursing home in nearby Clifton to visit Grant's 87-year-old mother, Mrs. Elsie Leach.

Grant first met Miss Cannon four years ago after he saw her on a television show.

Grant's first marriage in 1934 to actress Virginia Cherrill ended less than a year later. He married Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton in 1942, and that marriage was dissolved three years later. In 1949 he married actress Betsy Drake. That lasted nine years.

Miss Cannon began her Hollywood career eight years ago with a bit part in a movie.

Expect to Send Voting Bill to LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress expects to send to President Johnson this week the voting rights bill he urgently requested last March.

And the controversy over state legislative reapportionment that erupted after the one-man, one-vote ruling by the Supreme Court may reach a showdown in the Senate.

Also in the Senate, the Judiciary Committee has set a hearing for Thursday on Johnson's nomination of his friend and adviser, Abe Fortas, to succeed Arthur J. Goldberg on the Supreme Court.

The House Judiciary Committee is expected to act Tuesday on an administration bill to abolish the national origins quota system of immigration.

And with congressional hopes still pinned on adjournment around Labor Day, the Senate Labor Committee may complete work on a House-passed bill to double the funds available for the second year of the antipoverty program.

The reapportionment battle centers on a constitutional amendment proposed by Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois to get around the Supreme Court's decision that both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on the basis of population.

Dirksen's amendment would permit geography and political sub-divisions to be taken into account, in addition to population, in apportioning one house if the people approved in a referendum.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Dirksen announced last week that at today's session they would seek an agreement for a showdown vote Wednesday.

LBJ Causes Political Stir

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. AP-- President Johnson has caused a political stir by accusing a top congressional Republican of violating his confidence and releasing "untrue and perhaps malicious" information about deliberations on the Viet Nam war.

Johnson did not name the man he had in mind but a number of newspapers implied the President's target was House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford Jr., of Michigan.

Asked to comment, Ford said, in effect, that Johnson was talking through his hat if he had him in mind.

Hahn said the normal capacity of the Ramada Inn banquet room was about 750 but with the help of closed circuit television, tents, rented silverware and a patient crowd of 1,650 everybody was fed.

Governor and Mrs. Hearnes share the same birthday and the celebration was staged for the Democratic state committee's benefit.

Delton L. Houtchens, chairman of the state committee, said that the money definitely will not be spent before the general election campaign next year.

New Products For New Bathrooms

If you're tired of bending over to scrub around the water closet (toilet) in your bathroom, get a mop. Better yet, install an off-the-floor water closet.

According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, off-the-floor units provide the latest in fashion and make cleaning the bathroom floor a breeze. Securely mounted to the wall studding, these fixtures also allow easy installation of wall-to-wall bathroom carpeting, with no cut-outs needed. You've been seeing these figures in places like restaurant washrooms for years. Now they're becoming increasingly popular in the home.

Here's something else to consider if you're building or remodeling your bathroom this summer — you may wish to install a bidet (pronounced bee-day).

What's a bidet? It's a small bathroom bathing fixture designed for personal cleanliness. Used widely for many years in Europe and South America, it has come to be more widely used in this country. Commonly installed adjacent to the water closet, the bidet provides an excellent means for achieving maximum personal hygiene. Many physicians strongly recommend the use of a bidet for maintaining good health and the prevention of skin infections and irritations.

For further information about the installation of modern, efficient plumbing fixtures in your home, consult an experienced plumbing contractor. He will be glad to tell you about the many models and sizes available, and offer his advice on the types best suited for your particular needs.

UN Disappoints Eisenhower

MINOCQUA, Wis. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has expressed disappointment with the United Nations' position on South Viet Nam.

"I am disappointed that the United Nations has not shown the initiative to get the facts and marshal world opinion behind South Viet Nam's fight for life," he said.

Eisenhower, winding up a Wisconsin vacation Sunday, called for support of President Johnson's policies in the Viet Nam conflict.

The former president said the White House has facts not available to the public, adding:

"It is futile and difficult for the private citizen to talk about what should be done in Viet Nam. To develop opposition in times of crisis is to split the country."

Eisenhower made the comments to a newsman as he and his wife left nearby Woodruff by private rail road car to return to Gettysburg, Pa., after a 13-day vacation in the Northern Wisconsin lakes region.

Harold Seitman Was Cat Victim

ORAN -- It was 38-year-old Harold Seitman who was bitten by a rabid cat.

Scott county health department officials in announcing the incident withheld his name.

The man was given anti-rabies shots by a Cape Girardeau physician and is described as being in satisfactory condition. Presence of rabies in the cat was confirmed by authorities.

Bombers Make Seventh Strike

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers made their seventh reported strike in South Viet Nam today, dropping their bombs in the northernmost raid so far announced for the jet bombers.

A U.S. spokesman said 30 of the Strategic Air Command's eight-jet bombers dropped 500 tons of bombs during a 45-minute raid on "Viet Cong installations in Quang Tin Provience, approximately 350 miles north northwest of Saigon."

The raid was carried out at the request of the South Vietnamese government "against a suspected Viet Cong base near the Doxa," the spokesman said.

The Doxa is a mountainous, mist-shrouded area north of Kontum that the Viet Cong has controlled for years.

The government opened a mass military trial in Saigon today of 21 persons charged with undermining the war effort by signing various peace petitions.

The tribunal has the power to impose death sentences.

LBJ Causes Political Stir

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. AP-- President Johnson has caused a political stir by accusing a top congressional Republican of violating his confidence and releasing "untrue and perhaps malicious" information about deliberations on the Viet Nam war.

Johnson did not name the man he had in mind but a number of newspapers implied the President's target was House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford Jr., of Michigan.

Asked to comment, Ford said, in effect, that Johnson was talking through his hat if he had him in mind.

Hearnes Dinner Nets $38,798

JEFFERSON CITY -- A check for $38,798.34 was deposited to the credit of the Democratic state committee Thursday as the net proceeds from the Hearnes birthday dinner, according to John R. Hahn, general chairman.

Hahn said the receipts from the tickets ran to $47,855 with total expenses of $9,156.66.

Hahn said the normal capacity of the Ramada Inn banquet room was about 750 but with the help of closed circuit television, tents, rented silverware and a patient crowd of 1,650 everybody was fed.

Governor and Mrs. Hearnes share the same birthday and the celebration was staged for the Democratic state committee's benefit.

Delton L. Houtchens, chairman of the state committee, said that the money definitely will not be spent before the general election campaign next year.

New Products For New Bathrooms

If you're tired of bending over to scrub around the water closet (toilet) in your bathroom, get a mop. Better yet, install an off-the-floor water closet.

According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, off-the-floor units provide the latest in fashion and make cleaning the bathroom floor a breeze. Securely mounted to the wall studding, these fixtures also allow easy installation of wall-to-wall bathroom carpeting, with no cut-outs needed. You've been seeing these figures in places like restaurant washrooms for years. Now they're becoming increasingly popular in the home.

Here's something else to consider if you're building or remodeling your bathroom this summer — you may wish to install a bidet (pronounced bee-day).

What's a bidet? It's a small bathroom bathing fixture designed for personal cleanliness. Used widely for many years in Europe and South America, it has come to be more widely used in this country. Commonly installed adjacent to the water closet, the bidet provides an excellent means for achieving maximum personal hygiene. Many physicians strongly recommend the use of a bidet for maintaining good health and the prevention of skin infections and irritations.

For further information about the installation of modern, efficient plumbing fixtures in your home, consult an experienced plumbing contractor. He will be glad to tell you about the many models and sizes available, and offer his advice on the types best suited for your particular needs.

UN Disappoints Eisenhower

MINOCQUA, Wis. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has expressed disappointment with the United Nations' position on South Viet Nam.

"I am disappointed that the United Nations has not shown the initiative to get the facts and marshal world opinion behind South Viet Nam's fight for life," he said.

Eisenhower, winding up a Wisconsin vacation Sunday, called for support of President Johnson's policies in the Viet Nam conflict.

The former president said the White House has facts not available to the public, adding:

"It is futile and difficult for the private citizen to talk about what should be done in Viet Nam. To develop opposition in times of crisis is to split the country."

Eisenhower made the comments to a newsman as he and his wife left nearby Woodruff by private railroad car to return to Gettysburg, Pa., after a 13-day vacation in the Northern Wisconsin lakes region.

Harold Seitman Was Cat Victim

ORAN -- It was 38-year-old Harold Seitman who was bitten by a rabid cat.

Scott county health department officials in announcing the incident withheld his name.

The man was given anti-rabies shots by a Cape Girardeau physician and is described as being in satisfactory condition. Presence of rabies in the cat was confirmed by authorities.

Bombers Make Seventh Strike

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers made their seventh reported strike in South Viet Nam today, dropping their bombs in the northernmost raid so far announced for the jet bombers.

A U.S. spokesman said 30 of the Strategic Air Command's eight-jet bombers dropped 500 tons of bombs during a 45-minute raid on "Viet Cong installations in Quang Tin Provience, approximately 350 miles north northwest of Saigon."

The raid was carried out at the request of the South Vietnamese government "against a suspected Viet Cong base near the Doxa," the spokesman said.

The Doxa is a mountainous, mist-shrouded area north of Kontum that the Viet Cong has controlled for years.

The government opened a mass military trial in Saigon today of 21 persons charged with undermining the war effort by signing various peace petitions.

The tribunal has the power to impose death sentences.
